Ministry-To-Children Celebrates Milestone: YouTube Channel Nears 30,000 Subscribers as Digital Engagement Soars

October 16, 2024

Sellersburg, Indiana - October 16, 2024 -
Ministry-To-Children, widely recognized for its extensive resources designed for children's ministry, is excited to share an important milestone in digital engagement. The Ministry To Children YouTube channel is about to hit a remarkable 30,000 subscribers. This growth reflects the platform's commitment to offering accessible and free Christian education materials globally. Each month, more than 200,000 churches benefit from its free Sunday School lessons and activities, making Ministry-To-Children a crucial resource in enriching young minds with Christian teachings.

This platform was launched in 2007 by Tony Kummer, a former children's pastor, with the goal of supporting churches of all sizes and denominations around the world. Ministry-To-Children provides a variety of resources including Bible lessons for kids, craft activities, and coloring pages available at ministry-to-children.com. Tony Kummer remarked, "Reaching nearly 30,000 subscribers is more than a statistic for us. It's a testament to our community's dedication to enhancing children's spiritual lives. We are excited to see such positive engagement with Ministry-To-Children's resources." This accomplishment highlights the importance of having accessible Christian education online.

In its ongoing mission to reach more learners, Ministry-To-Children's Facebook Page has seen considerable activity. With 65,000 likes and 63,000 followers, it serves as a key platform for sharing Latest News, updates, and user feedback. The page provides easy access to free Bible-based lessons to guide young people in building a relationship with God using creative teaching methods.

Ministry-To-Children offers a wide range of services. Their Bible lessons are crafted to suit children from nursery age up to preteens, ensuring learning is accessible to all ages. Craft activities that correspond with the teachings help reinforce these messages in a fun and engaging way. Coloring pages offer children a delightful way to connect with the lessons, showcasing the platform's focus on creative learning. The comprehensive 52-Week Curriculum for Sunday Schools, found on their website, gives churches a structured approach to children's spiritual learning, allowing young church members to experience meaningful education.

Tony Kummer spoke about the impact of Ministry-To-Children's work, saying, "Our aim is to empower children's ministries worldwide with quality and accessible resources. Our achievements on online platforms exemplify our core mission?spreading the Word and making a positive impact in communities across the globe." The Ministry-To-Children team views these milestones as part of their broader vision of extensive and impactful Christian education.

Looking ahead, Ministry-To-Children is set on continuing its commitment to innovation and expansion, ensuring their content remains relevant and accessible. With the increase in digital engagement, the website plans to use these interactions to introduce more interactive and diverse educational materials. By taking advantage of digital platforms, the site is prepared to reach more households, schools, and churches, further expanding the availability of its free resources.

The successes on the YouTube channel and Facebook Page are just the beginning for Ministry-To-Children. As it continues to meet the needs of churches worldwide, it is poised to adapt and evolve through the efforts of Tony Kummer and his dedicated team. The organization remains steadfast in its mission to create enriching environments for children's ministry, underlining their role as an essential part of free, Christian education available online.
