

2016MedicareAdvantage.org Announces New Medicare Advantage Plan Comparison Feature

January 14, 2016

January 14, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

2016MedicareAdvantage.org is now one of the leading websites offering choices for seniors wishing to enroll in Medicare advantage plans for 2016. The website has launched a new feature for users to find the best plans in their state.

Statistics show that 16% of the U.S. population had enrolled in the Medicare program in 2012 and the government had spent close to 550 billion dollars on the Medicare program that year. The numbers have only gone to increase; it is estimated that the number of Medicare enrollees is bound to reach 64 million people in 2020. While Medicare has been divided into Medicare Part A, Medicare Part B and Medicare part D which adds prescription drug coverage to the plan, enrollees can also opt for a Medicare Advantage Plan with a private company to have all parts of their Medicare covered by one plan.

2016MedicareAdvantage.org has now launched a new feature on their website for users to compare the best Medicare Advantage plans in their state so they can get the best out of the plan they enroll in. The spokesperson for the website made an official press statement in which he discussed how the website works and what the thought behind the initiative was.

?2016MedicareAdvantage.org was created to help senior citizens reaching the age of 65 with selecting the best kind of Medicare Advantage plan for their needs. We have now put a new tool on our website that allows users to select their states and compare different kinds of Medicare Advantage plans in their state.?

He further added ?Our website not only helps people look for Medicare Advantage plans but it also educates them on the matter. We have lots of information and content on our website that the users can read to get a better understanding of things. For example, our website has all different types of Medicare Advantage plans listed with details and so much more.?
