Go Industries Inc., known for its truck accessories and custom manufacturing, is excited to announce its newest line of products aimed at boosting vehicle performance and protection. Their latest introduction, the winch grille guard, is specifically designed for models like the Chevrolet C4500, Chevy 6500, Ford F750, F650, and International CV515. This product showcases significant advancements in durability and functionality, all without needing any cutting or drilling.

These winch grille guards are all about convenience. They accommodate the tilt body feature, which allows them to move forward, making the hood easily accessible. This makes maintenance and adjustments super easy, requiring little effort from the user. The guards come equipped with two OEM-style latches and safety pins, ensuring a snug and secure fit. With a built-in winch tray that supports up to 16.5k capacity winches, these guards can handle various brands, enhancing the vehicle's utility.

"Our winch grille guard has been crafted with care to meet the high expectations of truck enthusiasts and professionals who rely heavily on these vehicles," said a representative from Go Industries. "Our goal is to offer a product that not only provides top-notch protection but is also versatile and simple to install. We take pride in making products that serve our customers' practical needs."

Built from sturdy materials, these grille guards boast fully welded components with headlight brush guards made from 1.9", 14-gauge tubing, and 2.5" center cross tubes. Their robust structure is built to last in various environments. Each guard features a black textured powder finish, adding both aesthetic charm and extra protection from the elements. Made with precision in the U.S.A., this product maintains the high standards synonymous with Go Industries.

Furthermore, the company offers a modular winch grille guard system, providing customizable options to suit different model years, makes, and personal styles. These options not only offer security and practicality but also allow customers to tailor solutions to their needs, boosting vehicle management system versatility. The effectiveness of these systems is elevated by the careful attention given to their design and construction. The guards use thick, laser-cut uprights made of 5/16 steel and 16-gauge steel cross tubes, ensuring strong performance in diverse conditions. Heavy-duty custom mounting brackets add additional strength and reliability to the systems.

"Our modular design provides customization that makes our products stand out," noted a spokesperson from Go Industries. "Whether it involves choosing different brush guard options or specific winch carriers, our products' flexibility ensures they fit a wide range of vehicles and tasks."

Since 1978, Go Industries has built a strong reputation for serving the truck and law enforcement market, consistently delivering innovative and quality products.
