January 20, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Vitamin C and Skin Care, based in Coronado, California, has announced the launch of their new website. The website is designed to offer information to readers regarding a number of skin care products.

A spokesperson for the company states, "Our new site was created to bring you the latest in Vitamin C infused skin care products that are available on the market."

On the site, readers will find a number of product reviews as well as a blog and recommended products from the site's owners and contributors. All products are designed to provide skin care results and contain Vitamin C. The site spokesperson states that, "We thought it was time that readers enjoyed unbiased opinions of products that are currently on the market."

The site lists products and offers honest reviews covering what the product is designed to do, how well it does its job, price points, and other information that readers can use when purchasing various skin care items. The site states that they offer only honest, unbiased information and that they are not affiliated with the product manufacturers. A number of products from various different industry producers are currently reviewed, and new items are added on a regular basis.

The blog is available for more information regarding skin care in general, as well as the general health benefits of Vitamin C, and which products contain adequate and useful amounts of this vitamin.

The site is designed for ease of use, giving readers various ways of learning about products in question. The site spokesperson states that their aim is to offer information that may not be readily available with regards to skin care products with Vitamin C infusion. Provided on the site are various reviews of products with this ingredient, as well as a number of tips to use when purchasing, and why Vitamin C infused products are good in general for skin care.

The new site is currently live and contains reviews of multiple products as well as staff recommendations for a number of items on the market. Those who are interested can find information on the newly launched website at <http://vitamincandskincare.com/>.
