Portland OR: All America Moving and owner Charity Olson are pleased to report that they have been operating in the Portland and Vancouver areas of the Pacific Northwest since 1994 and have built a loyal customer base in those 20 years. Customers benefit from the quality of the personnel, as well as the lowest legal rates in the area. The family-operated firm, All America Moving, specializes in residential and office moves, as well as local and long distance moving services.

The premium service provided by All America Moving are highly rated by its loyal customer base. The company is authorized by the Oregon Department of Transportation, which holds regulatory power over industry firms in the moving field. Customers who have used the service post positive reviews over the past two decades. Customers are those who relocate homes, as well as those who are relocating offices. The Better Business Bureau has given the company an A-Plus rating, which is another reason for the longevity of the firm.

All America Moving is able to provide customers with a wide range of services relating to moving across town, or across the country. This means that customers only need to deal with one business even when there is a long-distance relocation in the works. The company also can step in when the customer must move on short notice. The team response to customers' needs is professional, knowledgeable and careful.

The customer service people are knowledgeable about the typical questions which customers have. Every effort is made to explain the responsibilities of the mover, as well as those which the customer will need to take care of. The level of service which is offered by the moving personnel is designed to meet specific needs of the customer. Packing and unpacking services, provision of moving supplies, and moving tips and tricks are part of the premium service provided to each customer.
