The Tech Academy Announces New 15 Week Software Developer Boot Camp

January 19, 2016

January 19, 2016 -
The Tech Academy is a renowned institute providing online courses for training in technology. The academy has now announced their new 15 week Software Developer Boot Camp.

Many people have taken courses from online academies to land jobs that they were struggling to get. One such academy providing online entry-level technology training courses is The Tech Academy. Formerly known as Prosper I.T. Academy, The Tech Academy is the brainchild of Erik Gross and Jack Stanley who worked hard to pursue their endeavor in creating a credible institute for online I.T. courses.

Gross and Stanley worked hard to fully establish the school and create an effective curriculum. Once everything was ready and the school started to gain students in 2014, the name was changed to The Tech Academy. Since then, many students have graduated successfully.

?I cannot recommend The Tech Academy enough? I?ve got a 60k a year job with full benefits, working at an amazing company, in a beautiful office in downtown Portland,? states a student in a testimonial of the school. More testimonies can be seen on the school?s website at http://learncodinganywhere.com/testimonials.html.

The Tech Academy has now announced a new 15 week Software Developer Boot Camp. Titled ?How to become a software developer - The Missing Step?, the course is an online course and can be taken from anywhere in the world. The program requires students to work 40 hours a week to complete the 13 courses within the boot camp.

"Our courses are the missing link in effective training in the field of software development. They contain hundreds of technical definitions written by The Tech Academy. Students will gain a comprehensive, solid understanding of nearly every major element of the technology industry and more," stated The Tech Academy spokesperson in an official press statement.

More details about the 15 week Software Developer Boot Camp can be seen on The Tech Academy?s

official website at http://learncodinganywhere.com/bootcamp.html.

###

For more information about Learn coding anywhere, contact the company here:Learn coding anywhere

Learn coding anywhere