The Red Light Therapy used by OptiSkyn works with specific light wavelengths that deeply penetrate the skin. This method activates cells, which can lower inflammation, speed up healing, and boost collagen production. As a result, the skin may gain a more radiant look and find relief from issues like wrinkles, fine lines, scars, and chronic wounds. This non-invasive option is a valuable addition to what OptiSkyn already offers.

Yvonne Wright, the founder of OptiSkyn and an expert in the field, expressed her enthusiasm for this new service. She said, "Adding Red Light Therapy to our services aligns with our mission to provide non-invasive, scientifically tested, and FDA-approved treatments that deliver real results. With this therapy, clients can look younger without facing recovery time."

In addition to Red Light Therapy, OptiSkyn is known for its effective Plasma Pen treatments, which are popular for their skin-lifting and rejuvenating capabilities without the need for surgery. This technique uses plasma energy to target areas of the skin, triggering natural responses that boost the production of collagen and elastin. It's effective for tightening, lifting, and rejuvenating different skin areas while improving hydration and strengthening cells.
