January 26, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Impact Media Corporation, a business in Yukon, OK, is proud to announce the launch of the citywide WiFi ad network. This network will enable business owners of any size to effectively reach their target audience using intelligent ads. The network connects a community of business owners, allowing them to market to locals or tourists through each other's ad network host sites. Business owners can even generate revenue from hosting the network at their locations. The service is already being very well received. Full details are available through www.impactmediaokc.com.

Julia August from Impact Media Corporation says: "Our goal is to make sure the free WiFi service offered by our clients turns into a revenue generating machine. Through our system, they can understand their customers more and reach their target audience on our local and national networks. We're happy to see that it is being so well-received already."

The service is said to be one of the most effective ways to reach a specific audience. Advertising is possible for a very low price and businesses have great control over who gets to see their ads. They can specify whether they want to be seen locally, nationally or even internationally.

Essentially, those businesses that offer their customers free WiFi can utilize this new network to get something back through the system as well. Not only does the platform have a powerful array of marketing analytics tools and database building features, but those who sign up for the service will receive a check each month simply for giving WiFi away. This is on top of the fact that they can use the system to run contests, promotions and special offers and more, effectively using the marketing strategies commonly used by huge multinational corporations.

Those who have tried the system have been full of praise. "Impact Media does what their name says: they make an impact," says Jeanette D. "I signed up for their program because I was offering free WiFi in my store and was just not seeing the returns I was expecting through it. Now, however, my business is booming and I feel like I am truly in the 21st century."

People are encouraged to contact Impact Media as soon as possible for further information.
