January 02, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Fort Worth, TX?Kalos Medical Spa is pleased to announce the addition of Colorescience® products to its curated selection of skincare products and treatments. Colorescience, which offers a full portfolio of skincare products, is best known for its mineral-based sunscreens that offer comprehensive protection against environmental damage, including UVA/UVB rays, pollution, and blue (HEV) light.

?While trendy skincare ingredients come and go, the most important way to fight aging is to use high-quality SPF every day,? said Board-Certified Plastic Surgeon Dr. Emily Kirby, Owner and Medical Director of Kalos. ?Colorescience has created a powerful SPF that is both fun to wear and enhances your skin?s appearance over time.?

Colorescience® formulations protect the skin from harmful environmental factors and provide natural-looking coverage, combining the effects of makeup and skincare in one. Many products contain active ingredients that work to further protect the skin, reduce discoloration, or reverse signs of aging.

Dr. Kirby continued, "Colorescience sunscreens and skincare products support Kalos Medical Spa's commitment to delivering advanced care that promotes radiant and healthy skin. Their products contain proven active ingredients, while also providing cosmetically elegant application and user-friendliness."

The combined practical and aesthetic uses of these products make them highly complementary to the professional skin treatments, like Botox®-type injectables and chemical peels, that make Kalos Medical Spa a destination for skincare. Dr. Kirby said that she views these products as tools to extend the benefits of in-office procedures.

"Skin health doesn't end when a patient leaves our medical spa," commented Dr. Kirby. "It is a continuous process, and professional products allow us to empower our clients with effective, easy-to-use protection to enhance their results, prevent signs of aging, and encourage long-term skin wellness."

Clients can now shop for a range of Colorescience® products at Kalos Medical Spa, including Sunforgettable® Total Protection® Brush-On Shield SPF 50, an award-winning, portable mineral sunscreen that bushes on the skin like a powder and provides broad-spectrum protection with a sheer finish. The Brush-On Shield is safe to use for post-procedure care, such as after skin treatments that exfoliate the skin, offering gentle protection that is non-irritating for sensitive or healing skin.

Similarly, the Even Up® Clinical Pigment Perfector® SPF 50 works hand-in-hand with the medical spa's pigmentation-evening treatments, such as chemical peels or lasers, by helping to minimize existing discoloration (dark spots) and preventing future damage with both broad-spectrum SPF and iron oxides that protect against visible blue light, one of the main causes of irregular pigmentation.

The team of specialists at Kalos are especially excited to recommend the Total Eye® 3-in-1 Renewal Therapy SPF 35, which provides under-eye coverage like a concealer, protects from sun damage, and helps to minimize dark circles, puffiness, crow's feet, and skin laxity with regular use.

"We think that products of this quality are worth our own investment, and so we don't hesitate to also recommend them to our patients looking to protect their investment in skin treatments," Dr. Kirby commented. "While some people may think that using facials, fillers, and tox is all you need to maintain a refreshed appearance over time, they are best followed up with a fine-tuned skincare regimen at home. As aesthetic professionals, we believe it is our role to talk to every patient about their home skincare and help them find a regimen that supports their skin type and cosmetic goals."
