Caledon, Canada - The entertainment lifestyle blog ?A Rain Of Thought? is run by the publicist and social media consultant, Rain. The blog features the latest in music, movies, food, fashion, shows, restaurants, gadgets and more. Recently the blogger showcased the Fun Chalk Liquid Chalk markers as a suitable holiday gift. The blog highlighted how efficient the chalk markers were at writing on different surfaces and how suitable it was for use by children.

The blogger featured that the window markers made it easier to write on various surfaces. For example, her blackboard at work was usually written on using regular chalk. The regular chalk made the blackboard messy. It also smudged and was not creative enough for her needs.

According to Rain of Thought, using Fun Chalk Window Markers made the writing easy and fun. The markings on the blackboard looked clearer and cleaner than regular chalk. Rain mentioned that the board eventually looked more creative and lively.

According to Rain, the window markers were easy to wipe off. The blogger simply used Windex and wipes to get the markings off the blackboard. However any damp cloth can be used to wipe the window markers off their surface. The blogger recommended that the parents leave one wall on their children?s room as a space for a chalkboard to create a painted area. The children can go into a creative mood and decorate their room how they see fit.

The window markers don?t only work on chalk boards and windows but can also be used on drinking glasses. In fact, according to Fun Chalk, the window markers can be used on a variety of non-porous surfaces. These can include blackboards, mirrors, plastic and bistro boards. The window markers are ideal tools for school projects.

According to Fun Chalk, the window markers don?t have to be used by children alone in the customary arts and crafts projects. The chalk markers can be utilized by adults in various settings. The markers can be used to write down ideas in brainstorming sessions or become useful in making markings for promotional activities. Additionally the markers are long lasting and quick drying which makes it even more suitable for a good holiday gift.

The window markers are made exclusively available for online shoppers on the giant online marketplace Amazon. The markers are sold as an eight piece set that include bright neon colors including white.
