

Shonuff Roofing & Construction Expands Into Commercial Sector as Leading Roofer

January 22, 2025

January 22, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Shonuff Roofing & Construction is announcing an exciting expansion into the commercial sector. This company, which is already well-known for its quality and reliability, aims to help businesses find trustworthy roofing solutions. As an experienced roofing contractor, Shonuff Roofing & Construction is ready to meet the diverse needs of clients from various industries by offering a wide range of services.

Founded by Brian Shomali and co-owned by Air Force Veteran Marci Tomac, Shonuff Roofing & Construction is dedicated to quality workmanship. Those interested can visit their website to explore more about their commitment to customer satisfaction.

The decision to expand into commercial roofing comes after careful study and analysis of growing market demands. With a strong emphasis on using specialized skills and extensive experience, the company seeks to improve commercial projects. Their expertise as a roofing contractor means each job is executed with precision, promising results that align with industry standards and exceed client expectations.

"We're thrilled to take this next step on our journey," said the CEO of Shonuff Roofing & Construction. "Venturing into the commercial sector gives us the chance to share our craftsmanship and approach with a larger audience. We want to create long-lasting relationships through quality work and reliable service."

Entering the commercial market is a significant move for Shonuff Roofing & Construction, showcasing its dedication to growth and customer satisfaction. The company aims to provide solutions that prevent common roofing problems, ensuring safety and durability for commercial properties over the long term. As a commercial roofer, they focus on understanding each client's specific needs, using quality materials and proven methods. Learn more about their services such as roof coating and repair on their website.

This expansion also allows the company to draw on its broad experience in residential roofing. Every team member contributes to delivering personalized services for businesses that require high standards. They aim to set a new standard in service, concentrating not just on immediate repairs or installations, but offering advice that helps maintain a property's value over time.

Shonuff Roofing & Construction is making this move at a time when businesses are increasingly seeing the value of high-quality roofing solutions. Strong, durable roofing not only protects business facilities but also enhances the building's overall look and energy performance, considerations that are vital in today's environmentally conscious world.

"The shift to commercial roofing is more than just a business move; it's a chance to change how commercial properties handle their roofing needs," said the Chief Operations Officer. "We are committed to excellence, and we are eager to provide services that genuinely support our clients' success."

Shonuff Roofing & Construction plans to reach out to local businesses with informational sessions and personalized consultations. The company seeks to make the process straightforward and transparent, helping business owners who may be less familiar with roofing systems understand their options clearly.

As a burgeoning commercial roofer, Shonuff Roofing & Construction is determined to continue its tradition of delivering top-tier services. By using innovative techniques and sustainable practices, they plan to address the sophisticated needs of modern commercial buildings. Their focus is not only on meeting current demands but also on predicting future trends in commercial roofing and developing solutions that are practical and ahead of the curve.

The company's journey illustrates its commitment to evolving with the times while maintaining its foundational values of providing dependable roofing solutions. As it begins this new chapter, Shonuff Roofing & Construction stays focused on integrity and excellence, ensuring clients receive lasting results that make a difference.
