Atco, NJ digital marketing agency On Time Website Traffic has announced that they have launched a new social media method for retargeting leads. The system works on the premise that it takes more than one time to capture someone's interest enough to actually take action, and this is what it addresses. The system, which also uses the power of video, is already proving to be very popular.

Marcus Brown and project team of On Time Website Traffic says: "I can't stress enough just how powerful video is. It is one of the most important marketing tools out there right now, and we know how to use it, in conjunction with other tools, to make sure people get the exposure they need to turn irregular visitors into returning, paying customers."

On Time Website Traffic offers an extensive service package that is designed specifically for each individual client. They do not have any one size fits all solution but rather look at each client and come up with methods that work best for that particular situation. To achieve this, they encourage everyone to visit their website and request for their free lead generation page system, which shows the type of actions that will work best for their type of business. This report also shows how a service package could benefit them.

The work completed by On Time Website Traffic have been very positively received by their many clients. "In addition to the comments after I received the service, Google's webmaster tool is now showing 140 backlinks, which means that the website will be getting links from all over the internet," says Linda J. "The longer your links are there, the better positioning they will gain in time. Overall a great service - will be ordering again."

One of the specific focuses of the new method is to use the power of social media to retarget leads. This means that people get that second or even third exposure that they need in order to really start to recognize a brand of product. When this is added to video marketing, On Time Website Traffic believes that more leads will be converted into buying customers.
