Dragonfly Medical Expands Alcohol Addiction Treatment and Suboxone Services for Holistic Care in Johnson City

March 11, 2025

JOHNSON CITY, TN - March 11, 2025 -
Dragonfly Medical and Behavioral Health is excited to share that it is expanding its services to include new alcohol addiction treatment programs. This enhancement is part of a broader strategy to improve the comprehensive care provided at Dragonfly Medical Clinic. The goal is to meet the growing need for specialized alcohol treatment within the community.

The alcohol addiction treatment program offered by Dragonfly Medical and Behavioral Health focuses on personalized care. This means tailoring the support to fit each patient's unique needs. By combining traditional methods with new, innovative approaches, the program is designed to guide patients toward long-term sobriety. These new additions aim to work alongside existing treatments, offering stronger support to those facing issues with alcohol dependency.

"Alcohol dependency concerns have been growing, especially in challenging times such as these," said a representative from Dragonfly Medical and Behavioral Health. "Our aim is to offer a compassionate and supportive environment through our programs, ultimately helping individuals find their path to recovery."

Besides the new alcohol addiction treatment programs, Dragonfly Medical Clinic remains dedicated to a wide range of healthcare services. This includes primary care and mental health support, reflecting their commitment to a holistic approach to health and wellness. They aim to tackle both physical and mental health challenges. Additional details about their numerous services, including substance abuse treatments and telehealth, can be found on the Dragonfly Medical and Behavioral Health website at dragonflymedical.com.

Dragonfly Medical and Behavioral Health also provides treatment for various substance dependencies. This includes buprenorphine treatment for opioid use disorder, help with quitting smoking, support for stopping marijuana use, and methamphetamine treatment. These services demonstrate the clinic's commitment to offering full-spectrum care and support for those affected by substance use disorders.

The expansion includes better telehealth services, which have become particularly vital during the ongoing pandemic. Using digital tools for communication allows patients to consult with healthcare professionals while staying safe at home, reducing the risk of virus exposure and ensuring continuous care.

Dr. Alex Hughes, a spokesperson for Dragonfly Medical and Behavioral Health, explained the importance of making healthcare accessible. "Our goal is to make health services accessible to everyone who needs them," Dr. Hughes stated. "Whether that's through in-person visits or virtual consultations, we're here to provide the necessary support." Patients and their families can learn more about suboxone clinic in Johnson City through the facility's dedicated resources. This is aimed at individuals dealing with opioid addiction, helping them find relief and move toward recovery.

Dragonfly Medical and Behavioral Health prides itself on its wide range of treatment options and highlights the importance of individualized care. With a seasoned team of professionals, the clinic remains committed to helping patients enhance their general health and well-being. Their services are open to TennCare Medicaid and Virginia Medicaid patients, and they provide easy access to information about insurance coverage for those who ask.
