

Sexual Abuse Lawyers Provide List of Resources for Survivors in the Philadelphia Area

February 18, 2025

PHILADELPHIA, PA - February 18, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Philadelphia, PA ? Ashley DiLiberto, Esq. - The Abuse Lawyer PA, a leading legal advocate for survivors of sexual abuse, has compiled a comprehensive list of resources for survivors in the Philadelphia area. This initiative is designed to connect survivors with vital support services and highlight the network of organizations dedicated to assisting those affected by sexual violence. By offering this list, the firm aims to ensure that survivors can access the full range of services they need, from crisis intervention to legal representation.

"While we provide legal representation, we recognize that survivors often need a range of services beyond the courtroom," said Ashley DiLiberto, Esq. "Our goal is to ensure that survivors are aware of all the resources available to them in Philadelphia, so they can receive the support and care they need."

The resource list includes several well-respected organizations providing essential services to survivors of sexual abuse and assault:

WOAR Philadelphia Center Against Sexual Violence ? WOAR provides a 24-hour hotline (215-985-3333) that offers crisis support, counseling, and trauma therapy services for survivors of all ages, including children, teens, and adults. Their services are free and available regardless of insurance status.

Philadelphia Sexual Assault Response Center (PSARC) ? PSARC specializes in forensic rape examinations and evidence collection for survivors aged 16 and older. Their facility is open 24/7 and can be reached at 215-425-1625. Their trained professionals offer compassionate care to ensure survivors receive necessary medical attention and forensic support.

Tuttleman Counseling Services at Temple University ? This center provides confidential counseling through the Sexual Assault Counseling and Education (SACE) program, offering mental health support to students who have experienced sexual violence.

The Women's Law Project ? The Women's Law Project offers legal advocacy and operates a Telephone Counseling Service, providing survivors with crucial legal information and referrals for further assistance.

DiLiberto emphasized the importance of these organizations in creating a strong support network. "These organizations form a crucial support network for survivors," DiLiberto explained. "From immediate crisis response to long-term counseling and legal advocacy, Philadelphia has resources to help at every stage of the healing process."

DiLiberto emphasizes that her firm's role is to complement these existing services by providing specialized legal representation and education on survivors' rights. The firm ensures that survivors receive comprehensive support, including legal options for seeking justice and holding perpetrators accountable.

Survivors who choose to pursue legal action can benefit from DiLiberto's experience in representing victims of sexual abuse in Pennsylvania. The firm provides guidance on navigating legal proceedings, understanding survivor rights, and securing compensation for damages, medical expenses, and emotional distress.

"We want survivors to know they're not alone," DiLiberto stated. "There's a community of support available, and we're here to help navigate both the healing process and the legal system. Whether they need crisis intervention, counseling, or legal assistance, there are professionals ready to support them."

Survivors seeking immediate crisis support are encouraged to contact WOAR's 24-hour hotline or reach out to PSARC for medical and forensic assistance. Those in need of legal consultation can contact Ashley DiLiberto, Esq. - The Abuse Lawyer PA directly to discuss their options in a confidential setting. The firm offers free consultations to help survivors understand their legal rights and potential courses of action.

With a compassionate and survivor-focused approach, DiLiberto and her sexual abuse law firm in PA are committed to working alongside existing support services to provide comprehensive care and justice for survivors. The firm's legal team fights tirelessly to hold perpetrators accountable while providing unwavering support to survivors throughout the legal process.
