

Massachusetts Based Endless Energy Announces March Heat Pump Madness Promo and $20,000 Prize

March 18, 2025

Marlborough, Massachusetts - March 18, 2025 -
Endless Energy, a provider of Expert HVAC, Plumbing & Electrical Services in Massachusetts, is offering an exciting chance for homeowners with its latest promotion, the March Heat Pump Madness Promo . Running from February 15 to March 31, this offer gives Massachusetts homeowners a shot at saving money when upgrading to new heat pump systems. The promo includes both ductless and ducted systems. Anyone either has a no cost heat pump consultation or signs for a heat pump system during the contest period will be entered into a drawing to win a free system, with the grand prize valued at up to $20,000. More information on heating services, which include boiler installation and maintenance, furnace repair, and heat pump services, can be found on their website.

Matt Kidd, CEO of Endless Energy, shared his thoughts on the promotion, saying, "The March Madness Heat Pump Promo aims to energize homeowners considering more efficient heating solutions. We see a lot of interest in the market, and this promotion is a great way to turn that interest into action while rewarding our customers with a chance to save significantly."

For over forty years, Endless Energy has provided HVAC, plumbing, and electrical services to communities. The March Madness Heat Pump Promo emphasizes the company's focus on making energy-efficient solutions both accessible and affordable. The grand prize can be used as a refund for systems that were installed before April 1 or as a discount for systems that are yet to be installed. These terms are crafted to benefit customers while showing a clear route to installing energy-efficient systems.

On April 1 at noon, the company will hold a drawing for the grand prize through a Facebook live event, offering either a refund or a billed discount worth up to $20,000. This excludes rebates and previous discounts. The company's policy remains transparent, highlighting benefits for homeowners opting for these upgrades. Customers are encouraged to also explore their extensive cooling services, which include air conditioning repair, installation, maintenance, and coil cleaning services.

Matt Kidd further explained, "This initiative reflects our commitment to helping more families enhance their homes with modern solutions. We value our relationship with each client, which is why this promo also aims to make our services more compelling and accessible. It's an exciting time for us and for our customers."

Beyond heating, Endless Energy's services cover cooling systems, plumbing, electrical work, and home energy assessments for Massachusetts homeowners. All services are delivered by a team focused on quality and customer satisfaction. The March Madness Heat Pump Promo reaffirms this dedication, as it encourages homeowners to reduce their energy consumption and expenses over time.

The promo spans almost two months, offering ample time for homeowners thinking about upgrading their systems. Launching this promo at the beginning of spring showcases the company's customer-focused approach, enabling homes to be ready for warmer weather with great cooling systems or ensuring their heating is efficient before the return of harsh conditions.

This initiative also highlights Endless Energy's steps towards promoting sustainable energy practices within communities. With existing rebates and financing options, this promotion makes installing energy-efficient systems even more appealing. The Endless Energy team offers consultation and guidance to ensure the right decisions are made to suit each home's needs.

Endless Energy's long history in Massachusetts shows its capacity to innovate in a competitive market. With a strong Google rating and positive reviews, the company remains a go-to for HVAC, plumbing, electrical, and comprehensive home services. The March Madness Heat Pump Promo is expected to boost engagement and interest in these offerings, providing a valuable chance for customers to save on essential home upgrades.

For those interested, more details and the conditions for the March Heat Pump Madness Promo are available on Endless Energy's website. The company encourages potential participants to take advantage of this promotional period to expand their upgrade options. This new venture by Endless Energy aligns with its mission to provide energy-efficient, customer-oriented services to the community it has served for so long. Visit their website to explore a wide range of offerings, from commercial solar services to EV charging station installation, all aligned with promoting efficient and sustainable energy solutions.
