Century Pools Elevates Backyard Experiences with New Customizable Inground Pool Options in Northern California

February 27, 2025

Orangevale, CA - February 27, 2025 -
Century Pools, a well-regarded family business since 1964, is enhancing its specialization in creating inground pools across Northern California. Renowned for their detailed craftsmanship and tailored designs, Century Pools is responding to homeowners' changing needs by offering a wide range of pool types. Among these are Gunite, Freeform, Geometric, and the popular Pool and Spa Combo.

Their latest line of customizable pools adds a new level of elegance and adaptability to both homes and commercial venues. Designed with flexibility and practicality, this new line offers different options to fit various design tastes and space limitations. With features such as lap pools, infinity edges, and variable depths, these pools cater to both aesthetic and recreational desires. Century Pools integrates their pool designs seamlessly into the surrounding landscape, creating areas where families and friends can relax and connect.

Patrick O'Neal, a senior representative at Century Pools, elaborates on the company's dedication: "Our focus on designing and building top-tier inground pools in Northern California reflects our commitment to quality and customer happiness. We strive to make sure these pools enhance our clients' lifestyles while boosting their property's value." The company's dedication to customer satisfaction is backed by an A+ rating from the Better Business Bureau. With many years of experience, their expert team uses the latest materials and methods to provide reliable and beautiful pool installations.

This newly customizable pool line emphasizes sustainability, offering environmentally friendly choices like solar heating and energy-efficient pumps, allowing for responsible pool ownership. In response to the growing trend toward sustainable living, Century Pools includes intelligent energy features that make energy management user-friendly for clients.

Every pool installation is carefully planned to meet the specific environmental needs of its location, from soil conditions to water drainage, ensuring stability and long life. Advanced construction techniques help these pools endure the variable weather of Northern California, providing owners with peace of mind year-round.

Patrick O'Neal adds, "Our full range of services covers every part of pool ownership, from the initial design consultation to ongoing maintenance and repair. By providing solutions tailored to individual client visions, we make luxurious backyard living both attainable and practical." Their comprehensive approach extends to safety, ensuring features like slip-resistant surfaces and secure fencing are included to create a safe space for families.

Century Pools also offers expert consultations during the planning and installation phases, which begin with a detailed review of customer preferences and requirements. These consultations aim to develop pools that match clients' visions while maintaining the high standards for which Century Pools is known.

The company is also committed to social responsibility, supporting workforce diversity, fair wages, and community projects in Northern California. This dedication is reflected in their work as they continuously seek new ways to innovate and enhance their offerings.

With nearly 60 years in business, Century Pools has become a cherished part of many Californian communities, creating stunning pool experiences and turning backyard dreams into reality. By focusing on cutting-edge inground pools, Century Pools remains a leader in the pool industry, blending traditional luxury with modern advancements.
