

All Out Inspired Announces Bike Phone Mount Relaunch

January 27, 2016

January 27, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

All Out Inspired, a company that markets bike accessories, has relaunched their bike phone mount on Amazon. In addition to having a brand new website and launching a video marketing campaign, the product relaunch completes the significant developments recently undergone by the company. The phone mount can be purchased through <http://www.amazon.com/dp/B016R1RBYS>.

"There are exciting times ahead for us at All Out Inspired and for our clients," says a representative from the company. "Our new-look bike phone mount has been released on Amazon and is now available for purchase. The mount has long been very popular and we believe that its new look will enchant our clients even more."

The phone mount has been designed to deliver maximum safety for a rider's smartphone, PDA or GPS. It is designed in such a way that complete visibility is provided for the screen. This means that riders no longer have to be troubled in trying to make sense of their own screen. It now also comes with an effortless swivel function and full 360 degree rotation, which means it can be seen even when riders get off their bikes.

The product has been very positively received. "This phone holder works very well. I put my phone in the holder and it gripped it tight," says Daniel S. "Then I realized that it had feet that swung out to support the bottom. On top of all that, it has a rubber strap to hold it in so well that it probably wouldn't come out even if my bike gets wrecked. All the plastic parts are tough just like all the other products I've had for bicycles. The foam built in keeps the phone from rattling around and gives it a little buffer zone."

The new mount is also featured on the company's recently launched website, <http://alloutinspired.com/>. Here, it is shown that the clamp is fully adjustable and comes with a four point silicone strap, which will keep the device in place at all times. Easy to install and very useful, it isn't difficult to see why it is such a popular product.
