March 17, 2025

Hampstead, North Carolina - March 17, 2025 -
Hampstead, NC ? Subtle signs such as squinting, sitting too close to screens, or experiencing blurry vision may indicate early myopia, a common refractive error that impairs distant vision. Left unmanaged, myopia can progress rapidly and lead to serious complications later in life, including glaucoma, retinal detachment, and other vision-threatening conditions.

Atlantic Eye Associates, serving families throughout Hampstead, NC, and surrounding communities, specializes in early intervention and advanced myopia management solutions designed to preserve long-term vision. With rising global myopia rates, the expert team employs advanced diagnostic tools and personalized treatments to safeguard children's sight.

Why Early Myopia Management Matters

Recent research indicates that myopia is becoming increasingly prevalent, with experts predicting that nearly half of the global population may be myopic by 2050. Without timely intervention, myopia can progress rapidly during formative years, resulting in frequent changes in eyeglass or contact lens prescriptions, increased dependency on corrective eyewear, and a heightened risk of serious eye diseases later in life. Early detection and treatment are essential to slow myopia progression and mitigate long-term health risks associated with severe nearsightedness.

?Our goal is to prevent the long-term consequences of myopia,? said Dr. Brad Hearn, O.D., of Atlantic Eye Associates. ?By employing clinically proven treatments and a highly personalized approach, children are enabled to maintain healthy vision for years to come. Early management is critical?it protects sight in the present and preserves quality of life in the future.?

Advanced Myopia Treatment Options

Atlantic Eye Associates offers state-of-the-art treatments tailored to meet each child's unique needs. The comprehensive approach includes:

Orthokeratology (Ortho-K) Lenses: Specially designed, rigid gas-permeable contact lenses are worn overnight to gently reshape the cornea, providing clear, glasses-free vision during the day. This non-invasive treatment has proven highly effective in slowing myopia progression, making it an ideal option for children.

Atropine Eye Drops: Utilizing a low concentration of atropine, this treatment relaxes the eye?s focusing mechanism, thereby reducing the rate at which myopia worsens. Backed by extensive clinical research, atropine eye drops offer a safe and effective method for managing myopia in young patients.

Both treatments address the immediate symptoms of myopia while targeting its underlying progression, significantly reducing the risk of future complications and ensuring a brighter, clearer future.

A Commitment to Community Vision Health

Atlantic Eye Associates' mission extends beyond providing exceptional eye care. The organization is dedicated to educating the community about the importance of early myopia management and overall vision health.
