Las Vegas NV: Las Vegas wedding and boudoir photographer Jennifer Johnson of J. Renee Studios is pleased to announce the re-branding of her photography business. She has been a respected photographer in the Las Vegas, Nevada area for more than fifteen years. The new website at <http://www.jreneestudios.com> shows off her boudoir and wedding photography skills and experience. The photography studio is located in Centennial Hills. Previously, J. Renee Studios was known as J and J Photography.

Jennifer is an award-winning photographer, with numerous certificates and awards to her credit. She is a member of the Professional Photographers Association (PPA). Her specialties are boudoir photography as well as wedding photography. Wedding photography specialists must demonstrate creativity, as well as the technical skills which depend on lighting and placement of the subjects in the frame. J. Renee Studios professionals have the knowledge and experience to make each wedding image perfectly composed.

In addition to a technically correct image, Jennifer says that the photographer must be able to tell a unique and creative story about the special events of the day. Formal posed group images are not as popular today as those which show movement, fun and a more natural flow. Today's weddings tend to be more natural and fun, she says and the photographer is able to capture the moments which are special during the entire day of celebration.

Boudoir photography requires a different type of skills and creative abilities. An image of this type is focused on one person, usually female in a very intimate and beautiful setting. The image is less about action and fun than it is about the personality of the person in the image. This type of photography is often produced as a special gift from the bride to the groom on their wedding day. It is not intended for public distribution since the emphasis is not on a beautiful gown, but rather on sexy lingerie, or perhaps wearing nothing at all.

More about Jennifer's work can be found at <http://www.jreneestudios.com>.
