January 29, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Central Hong Kong based Rightnow Products Limited has announced that they have received word that Evan Turner of the Boston Celtics has been seen putting on knee braces to help deal with knee pain. This has drawn a lot of attention to knee braces. Details about how the basketball star used knee braces can be found at http://www.masslive.com/celtics/index.ssf/2016/01/boston_celtics_evan_turner_thi.html.

"It is said that Boston Celtics basketball star Even Turner can be seen before every game in the locker room, pulling his two braces on," says Eric Arnow, creator of For-Knees braces for Rightnow Products Limited. "Then and only then will he start to do his stretches and, eventually, go out on the court. Turner is one of many athletes who now manage painful knees by wearing braces and we're happy to see that the world is starting to pay attention."

Even Turner suffered from painful wear and tear in his right knee during preseason. He believes that the condition will bother him for the rest of the season, although he is taking steps to help with the healing. Icing is one of those steps, but he feels that wearing knee braces is what has made it possible for him to get back on the court, rather than having to sit out matches.

Meanwhile, because of the increasing popularity of knee braces, sales for For-Knees braces have also picked up. Available through <http://www.amazon.com/dp/B016WQW7A6>, there has been a spike in both purchases and positive reviews. "This product does everything it says it does," says one happy customer. "For-Knees really cares for their customers' health. For-Knees will improve your knees, better than they are now. You owe it to yourself to try it."

People who have knee pain are encouraged to learn more about the various features of the For-Knees braces through www.for-knees.com/features. Rightnow Products Limited points out that these can serve as protection for the knees while the user is engaged in sports. In addition, those who have used them declare that the braces helped with knee pain. For instance, Harrison Beasley says: "Relieves the pain I have in my knees; I plan to wear all day for my ski trip in March."
