January 28, 2016

January 28, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

A business in Los Angeles, CA, is proud to introduce their new lemon essential oil that can be used as a natural cleaner for the home. This product can help people clean their homes naturally, enabling them to avoid harmful toxic chemicals to make their homes healthier. Lemon oil has been demonstrated to have a number of benefits in terms of cleaning.

Quinton Jeffries from Essential Oil Labs says: "All of our products are 100% pure and natural. Additionally, we only use sustainable sources. In so doing, we guarantee that we can offer the best quality products that have the lowest possible impact on the health of our clients and on the planet as a whole."

Essential Oil Labs is fully committed to creating products that have a variety of benefits. Their lemon oil is the latest in a long range of essential oil products, which include peppermint oil. Their goal is to help people improve on their cleaning, enhance their digestion, and upgrade their hair care. As such, each product is multi-functional and may benefit people in a variety of different ways.

While only released recently, the lemon oil is already receiving numerous positive reviews and people have been using it for other purposes too. "This lemon oil makes my water taste and smell great," says Mel. "It is very uplifting. I will use it for other applications, too. I am very pleased with the quality of this product and the exceptional service and personal attention provided by this merchant. I am a "newbie" to the EO market. After researching and reading numerous reviews, I am glad that I chose these essential oils. I would highly recommend them and, in fact, I have already recommended them to family members. Buy with confidence."

People are also encouraged to Like and Follow the Essential Oil Labs Facebook page. This is an opportunity for them to be kept up to date with further product developments, as well as hearing about industry news and receiving hints and tips on how best to use the oils. Furthermore, it is a chance for like-minded people to discuss how they have used the oils and to share their own experiences with others.
