January 28, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Simple Profits Review app has been released to binary software traders and is described as user-friendly. The software is 100 percent free of charge. No credit card, bank account or similar information is collected in order to gain access to the simple, yet effective system. Binary Safeguard.com has released a full review of the software and describes the characteristics of the system as easy to use. In support of the positive statements about the trading software, stories from the BBC and the New York Times are included on the website.

One-click trading using the new app release is possible, thanks to the full automation of the process. The app places winning trades for users. When preparing a review for the free software, the reviewers look at accounts and testimonials provided as confirmation. The results were verified so far as possible. The software provides live and instant updates of the binary options market in order that a full picture of market action is available. The system is transparent, with live feeds to Facebook and Twitter accounts. Even when there are losses, the software demonstrates the full information.

Experts in binary trading have examined the software and have posted positive comments and feedback on the website. Utilizing the software is not complicated. There are no charges associated with downloading the system. A specific binary options broker will be recommended to members. Signing up with the broker is also free of charge. A minimal amount of deposit funds are placed in the brokerage account and is the basis of significant earnings from the system trades.

Results from the successful trades vary according to the size of the deposit. Daily earnings can amount to thousands daily. The software doesn't require constant attention at the computer. An automated trade requires a simple click in the software. The customer support team is available to assist 24/7.
