

Rooter Hero Plumbing, a Commercial Plumbing Company in Phoenix, Addresses Backflow Problems

February 02, 2016

February 02, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Located in Tempe, AZ, Rooter Hero Plumbing, announces the expansion of its backflow prevention services to businesses throughout the Phoenix Metro area. In business for over 20+ years, this highly-rated commercial plumbing service company aims to ensure that every commercial building in the metro area remains fully operational and free of backflow problems. Commercial businesses in the area are excited about these services not only to help them stay in compliance with backflow certification requirements but to prevent unexpected shutdowns or interruption in business.

Jessica Perrault, Rooter Hero Plumbing's spokesperson, says: "Our company offers a complete menu of commercial plumbing services. In addition to our design/build, new construction, water conservation, and tenant improvement services, we can also assist you with backflow, sewer relining, and mold removal and restoration. Backflow problems can be particularly problematic for commercial buildings, but our skilled, licensed plumbers able to address all of these issues."

Commercial buildings are obliged, by law, to perform backflow testing each year and to submit a report stating that prevention methods are in place. Most companies use a backflow testing company to meet these requirements. Unfortunately, the issue is that these companies can detect potential problems but cannot fix them because they are not licensed plumbers. As a result, if a problem is detected, the company will have to call for a plumber, which can incur double expenses."

By offering complete services for commercial plumbing in Phoenix Metro, Rooter Hero Plumbing is able to do both: certification and repairs. They can test the backflow and provide the necessary report to ensure compliance. At the same time, they can fix any other problems they come across. "At Rooter Hero Plumbing, we do it all," adds Jessica Perrault. "We'll test your system for backflow problems, make repairs immediately, and submit the required compliance documentation to city officials. We make fulfilling your legal obligation quick and easy."

Full details about the various commercial plumbing services Rooter Hero Plumbing offers are listed on their website at <https://rooterhero.com/phoenix-metro>. Whether a business is big or small, the company encourages business owners and property managers to contact them as soon as possible for backflow testing to ensure complete compliance.
