Located just 15 miles north of downtown Boston, Wilmington is increasingly recognized as a business-friendly destination with strong infrastructure, convenient commuter access, and a growing commercial community. The available office spaces, situated in key business parks and high-visibility corridors, benefit from proximity to major highways, including I-93 and I-95, as well as close connections to MBTA commuter rail stations. Tenants benefit from flexible lease terms, in-house design and construction teams, and the opportunity to scale space as needed. The firm?s vertically integrated approach means tenants deal directly with Cummings Properties? staff for everything from lease negotiations to ongoing maintenance, streamlining the process and ensuring consistently high standards of service.

Wilmington?s commercial properties have long attracted tenants from a variety of sectors, including technology, life sciences, finance, and light manufacturing. Sustainability and operational efficiency are also key considerations for Wilmington properties. Energy-efficient lighting, updated HVAC systems, and green landscaping initiatives are part of ongoing efforts to ensure environmentally conscious management across the portfolio. This aligns with broader trends in commercial real estate, as more organizations seek office space that reflects their environmental, social, and governance (ESG) commitments.

Cummings Properties? presence in Wilmington spans multiple locations, including Concord Road and Fordham Road, both of which have seen recent upgrades to building exteriors, common areas, and signage. These improvements are part of a proactive investment strategy aimed at enhancing tenant experience while maintaining the long-term value of the properties. New and prospective tenants can expect well-maintained facilities with modern finishes and infrastructure capable of supporting today?s digital and operational demands.
