San Diego, CA business Local SEO Profit is promoting Press Release Plus, which is one of their ventures. For this, they are looking for a new website that is ready to announce their existence through the medium of press release. Interested parties are encouraged to contact them as soon as possible. Local SEO Profit's Roderick Luna says: "Press releases are probably the most powerful SEO tool available at the moment. They hit all the targets, being friendly to both global and local search engines, and actually providing people with what they want to hear. Press releases are short and to the point, which means they grab people's attention, and they actually announce things that people want to know about." Press Release Plus, which has only been recently launched, is already making some ripples in the world of digital media. They will be focusing on a number of specific areas and niches over the common weeks and month. One of those niches is the newly launched website. By focusing specifically on these types of businesses, they aim to support new enterprise overall. "It takes a lot of guts to start a new business in today's competitive world," adds Roderick Luna. "It is virtually impossible to come up with something that doesn't already exist, and the internet is about as close to full as it can get. We want to support those businesses that feel brave enough to try and make it through our press release service, so we encourage everyone to contact us as soon as possible." Press releases are an important tool in the world of digital marketing and promotion. A number of dedicated websites and services now exist that specifically focus on this, including Press Release Plus. These types of sites, in turn, are scoured by world journalists who, if a story catches their eye, will run larger stories on them as well. This offers a huge world of potential. In addition, even if the large media outlets do not pick up on a story, the search engine robots like press releases, so long as they are formulated properly. It is the fact that they can increase online authority that Local SEO Profit wants to focus on. ###
