The South Phoenix, AZ office of Express Employment Professionals is proud to announce that they are engaged in a number of efforts to give back to the community. Daria Buss from Express Employment Professionals says: "At the heart of an economy lies employment. However, employment cannot happen without overall good health, happiness and generally strong communities. We want to make sure that we support people into employment from the moment they are born until they retire, which is why we support a number of community initiatives that follow these same values."

In order to be able to continue to offer this community support, however, they do encourage everyone to use the job search South Phoenix, AZ facility on their website. In so doing, people who find employment will also be able to support the community itself, not just through economic regeneration, but also by furthering their own skills and careers. The company has a wealth of positions on offer, including order selectors, sales representatives, dry cleaners, receptionists, administrative assistants, and more.

The work done by the employment agency has been very positively reviewed by members of the community. "Went in for work and they had me at a job the next day," says Jason R. "Great and friendly staff made it a very easy and painless process."
