

Bugworks Pest Control Delivers Trusted Pest Management Solutions for Homes and Businesses in Las Vegas

May 19, 2025

LAS VEGAS, NV - May 19, 2025 -

Bugworks Pest Control, a family-owned business, has been helping folks in Las Vegas and nearby areas keep their spaces pest-free since 2001. They offer a bunch of services, from handling pests at home and in commercial settings to dealing with scorpions and rodents specifically. Bugworks is all about providing top-notch service without pushing unnecessary solutions, making sure everything is eco-friendly and effective. Visit Bugworks Pest Control's website for more detailed information about their services and eco-friendly approach.

One standout feature of Bugworks Pest Control is their Las Vegas commercial pest control services. They know that businesses face unique challenges when it comes to pests, so they create customized treatment plans for each client. Their aim is to protect businesses' reputations, customers, and staff by tackling pest problems that could otherwise cause big headaches. More information about what they offer can be found on their website.

Rich Lucero, a spokesperson for Bugworks Pest Control, talked about why their services are so important. "Our goal has always been to support businesses by ensuring their environments are pest-free. We understand how crucial it is for companies to maintain impeccable reputations, and pest issues can severely impact that. We strive to offer tailored services that not only address immediate pest concerns but also provide long-term solutions."

Aside from commercial services, Bugworks Pest Control also takes care of residential needs through their Home Shield and Home Shield Advanced plans. These plans focus on keeping families safe from pests like rodents and cockroaches, using eco-friendly methods that are both effective and safe for residents and the planet. Another key service at Bugworks is their scorpion control. Their team uses tried-and-true methods to get rid of scorpions, making sure homes and businesses are safe and comfortable. When it comes to rodents, Bugworks handles them professionally, ensuring unwanted critters are removed safely and effectively. Their rodent control and removal services are detailed further online for those interested.

Dealing with cockroaches is also in Bugworks' wheelhouse. Their solutions are specifically designed to tackle cockroach infestations, maintaining clean and healthy environments in both homes and workplaces.

Bugworks Pest Control has earned a solid reputation for reliability and quality service. Customer feedback, like a review from Toni Fahnestock, highlights their responsive customer service. Toni, who has used their services at several properties over the years, gave Bugworks a five-star rating, showing the trust and satisfaction clients have in the company.

Sharing more about the company's approach, Rich Lucero said, "We're grateful for the support and trust our clients have placed in us over the years. Working in a community like Las Vegas comes with its unique pest challenges, and we're here to address them head-on. Our team is always ready to provide timely and effective solutions, ensuring that whether it's a business or a home, our clients can enjoy a pest-free environment."

For those looking to connect with Bugworks Pest Control in Las Vegas, the company offers free estimates, highlighting their commitment to transparency and client satisfaction. They promise to re-treat areas if pests show up between scheduled visits, backing up their dedication to delivering quality service.

For those interested in more information or want to schedule a service, reach out to Bugworks Pest Control directly through their website or phone. They look forward to helping more clients enjoy pest-free living and working spaces, continuing the trust they've built over two decades in the industry.
