Kennesaw, GA ? Vilchis Tree Services Pro of Kennesaw has released a new blog post that reflects the company?s deep connection to the Kennesaw community. The post, titled ?10 Things You?ll Only Understand If You?ve Lived in Kennesaw More Than 10 Years?, is available now on the company?s official website. It speaks to long-time residents of Kennesaw with humor, honesty, and familiarity, while also reinforcing the company?s local roots.

The blog offers readers a personal look at what makes Kennesaw unique through the eyes of those who have lived there for over a decade. The post touches on shared local experiences, such as long lines at Big Pie in the Sky, traffic on Barrett Parkway, or the way locals reference the ?mountain? without further explanation. It captures inside jokes and small moments that define the area. For those who have called Kennesaw home for many years, it provides a sense of recognition. For newer residents, it offers insight into the town?s personality.

Alex Laldin, Marketing Director at Vilchis Tree Services Pro, spoke about the motivation behind the post. ?We didn?t just want to talk about our services,? Laldin said. ?We wanted to talk about our neighbors. This blog is a thank-you to the people who?ve built this community over the years. It?s for the families who remember when Town Center was quiet and for the folks who can still hear the whistle of a train at 2 a.m. and smile.?

Laldin explained that the blog is part of a broader effort by the company to stay connected with local customers beyond day-to-day service work. ?We serve this community every day, but we also live here. We?re parents, homeowners, and longtime residents too. Posts like this let us show that we understand Kennesaw not just as a service area, but as our home.?

The blog post has already sparked strong engagement on social media. Readers have commented with their own memories and reactions, sharing how much they relate to the post. ?One person told us it felt like we?d been reading their mind,? Laldin shared. ?Another said they laughed out loud reading about that one Waffle House everyone knows is ?the good one.? These kinds of reactions matter to us because they show we?re building real trust with the people we serve.?

Vilchis Tree Services Pro plans to continue producing content that centers the local experience. While the company is best known for tree removal, pruning, and emergency storm response, its leadership believes storytelling plays a key role in building long-term relationships. ?Of course we want people to know about our services,? Laldin said, ?but more than that, we want them to know that we?re part of this community. We?re here before the storm, during the cleanup, and long after the branches are gone. That?s what this blog represents.?

The post also offers a few subtle nods to the importance of trees in Kennesaw?s identity. From shady streets that line older neighborhoods to the tall pines around local parks, the blog weaves in small moments that remind readers of the company?s role in maintaining the area?s natural beauty. ?Kennesaw has a special look and feel,? Laldin said. ?It?s not just about buildings and roads. Trees are part of the memory. They?re in your backyard, they line your street, they?re part of every season. We help take care of them, and in doing that, we help preserve those memories.?

The company encourages residents to read the blog and share their thoughts. Vilchis Tree Services Pro sees this as an ongoing conversation and plans to feature more local stories in future posts.
