June 05, 2025 -

MyExpatTaxes, a leading US expat tax company known for its support of U.S. citizens living overseas, is highlighting an important upcoming deadline for American expatriates. By June 16th, expats must act to claim the 2021 stimulus payments. This deadline represents the final opportunity for expats who haven't already to benefit from COVID-19 economic stimulus payments, which can total thousands of . MyExpatTaxes is urging individuals not to miss out on this opportunity.

As the U.S. is one of just two countries that taxes based on citizenship rather than residence, Americans living abroad have to report their worldwide income by filing a U.S. tax return every year. Many Americans expats are unaware of this requirement to file from overseas though, so get behind in their filing. The IRS has an amnesty program for these expats though called the Offshire Streamlined Filing Compliance Procedures. This process offers a chance for overseas Americans who have unintentionally failed to meet their filing obligations to catch up on their U.S. tax filing without facing penalties. It requires submitting the last three years of tax returns and, where applicable, up to six years of Foreign Bank and Financial Accounts Reports (FBARs). The procedure can seem complex, but with MyExpatTaxes offering either self-service or guided assistance, expats can find a sense of relief with easy access to tools like a US expat tax calculator and a stimulus check calculator found on their website.

Nathalie Goldstein, CEO of MyExpatTaxes, underscores the significance of acting before the June 16th deadline for non-compliance overseas Americans, saying, "The June 16th 2025 deadline is the last opportunity for American expatriates who may not have been aware that they have to file U.S. taxes from abroad to claim teh COVID-19 stimulus payments. It's also a valuable opportunity to get tax compliant without facing penalties. Our goal is to provide them with the guidance they need to make the most of these benefits." Her words reflect the broader mission of MyExpatTaxes - supporting American expats in navigating what can often be a daunting process filing from overseas (often as well as filing taxes in the country where they reside).

The 2021 expanded Child Tax Credit is also available for American families living abroad. This credit offers a substantial benefit of up to $3,600 per child, refundable for qualifying families. Timely filing is critical to claim this credit, ensuring families don't inadvertently miss out. To aid in this, expats can access comprehensive guidance and information on the Streamlined Procedures through MyExpatTaxes' dedicated page: https://www.myexpattaxes.com/expat-tax-tips/the-streamlined-procedure/last-chance-americans-abroad-get-caught-up-claim-astimulus-payment/.

Adding to the firm's efforts, Goldstein remarks, "The potential gains for catching up and filing for 2021 for expats who qualify for the stimulus payments are typically far outweigh the costs of becoming compliant. Our platform is designed to simplify the tax filing process for U.S. citizens abroad, offering practical solutions and expert support. With the deadline imminent to claim these valuable payments, we're dedicated to helping expatriates claim what they are rightfully owed." This statement emphasizes MyExpatTaxes' commitment to easing the stress associated with U.S. tax filing for expats.

These resources provide education and support, aimed at simplifying and demystifying the intricacies of international tax reporting for Americans living abroad. User testimonials and official reviews highlight the effectiveness and reliability of MyExpatTaxes' services, reinforcing their reputation as a helpful aid for expats.
