

ARC Restoration Expands Water Damage Services in Denver to Combat Home & Business Disruptions

July 16, 2025

DENVER, CO - July 16, 2025 -
ARC Restoration, a company based in Denver, announced it's boosting its water damage restoration services to better cater to the needs of the Colorado community. This expansion is a strategic move to meet the growing demand for fast and effective water mitigation and restoration services for homes and businesses. Learn more about their comprehensive water mitigation services at ARC Restoration's Water Mitigation page.

The company specializes in several key areas, including water extraction, mold remediation, and structural drying. By using advanced techniques and equipment, they effectively manage water damage. Whether it's a flooded basement or dealing with the results of firefighting, ARC Restoration offers tailored solutions to bring affected properties back to their original state. For detailed information on their approach to handling flooded basements, visit their Flooded Basement Services page.

"Water damage can seriously disrupt both the structure of homes and businesses and the lives of those who use them," said Chris Barnett, CEO of ARC Restoration. "By expanding our services, we aim to provide our clients with quick, trustworthy, and effective solutions that lessen these risks. We want to minimize disruptions and safely restore properties as quickly as possible."

Their water mitigation services start with removing standing water using powerful pumps. Then, ARC Restoration's experts utilize proven methods to remove mold, including measures to prevent it from spreading further. The drying process involves special dehumidification techniques that lower humidity levels, which helps stop future mold growth. The company is dedicated to keeping communication clear with clients and often helps with insurance claims to make recovery easier. To discover more about their efficient mold removal process, check out their Mold Removal Services page.

The company's expansion also improves its ability to tackle complex issues like sewer backups. These situations can be serious health hazards if not dealt with quickly. ARC Restoration uses modern equipment for efficient sewage removal and thorough cleaning, which reduces the chance of contamination and helps keep the environment safe. Additional information about their expertise in handling sewer backups can be found on their Sewer Backup Services page.

Besides residential services, ARC Restoration also assists commercial property owners with damage, offering emergency response teams ready to handle large-scale disasters. Knowing how crucial business continuity is, they provide 24/7 support to help businesses resume operations with as little downtime as possible.

"Acting fast is crucial when it comes to water damage, especially for businesses where every second matters," Barnett continued. "Our expanded services are designed to meet pressing timelines without sacrificing quality or thoroughness."

Furthermore, ARC Restoration provides preventative measures and expert advice to help clients avoid future water damage. They offer free inspections to deliver insights into potential vulnerabilities. This helps clients take practical steps to strengthen their properties against possible threats.

ARC Restoration offers its services across a wide area in Colorado, reaching cities like Arvada, Aurora, Boulder, Broomfield, Castle Rock, and Centennial. By widening its reach, the company aims to support the safety and resilience of various communities against natural disasters and unexpected accidents.

Their trained team is committed to ensuring satisfaction through every step of the restoration process. From the initial assessment to the final repairs, the focus is on restoring a sense of security and comfort for every client.

As environmental challenges become more frequent, ARC Restoration stays committed to providing timely and effective solutions. Their dedication to excellent service positions them as a reliable ally in disaster restoration efforts. Visit their company website for more detailed information on all their services, including customized solutions for both residential and commercial properties.
