Cottonwood Heights, UT - The Humane Society has posted on their blog an article educating pet owners on how to remove pet stains and pet odor removal. The Humane Society of the United States is the nation's largest, most effective and well known animal protection organization.

The Humane Society provides care and services for more than 100,000 animals each year. They also provide education and training for local organizations in a range of different topics, all relating back to the well-being of animals. On their website, they feature such educational topics as dog training, traveling with pets, feeding your pets and more.

One of their most popular posts is in regards cat urine cleaners and pet urine odor removal. This blog post walks pet's owners through various scenarios such as how to clean soiled sheets or blankets, carpeted areas, upholstery, floors and walls.

One of the most common questions with pet owners is how to clean stains that have already set it, since most of the time pet owners are not home when these accidents may have occurred. The Humane society recommends starting with an "extractor or wet vac" machine that can remove all traces of stains in the carpeting.

"These machines do a great job forcing the clean water through your carpet and then forcing the dirty water back out," states the blog post.

Then the next suggestion according to the blog, is to "use a high-quality pet odor neutralizer" once the area is fully cleaned. These types of pet odor neutralizers can be found in pet stores and online.

"When we were training our kitten to use the litter box, she had several accidents. A friend of mine recommended a cleaner she got on Amazon, S.U.N " Severe Urine Neutralizer concentrate for pet urine odor removal. I tried it and worked just as described," said Janie, a happy customer of Remove Urine, a top retailer of professional grade dog and cat urine cleaner and odor removal.

The blog post by the Humane Society goes on to state, "once you've established that your pet is healthy, you can teach her where you want her to eliminate"treat your pet with patience and encouragement!?"
