July 22, 2025

Wigan, UK - July 22, 2025 -
United International Removals has noticed a growing trend: more people are relocating from the UK to the Canary Islands. This change highlights how appealing these islands have become for people searching for a better lifestyle and a more welcoming climate. The increase in interest can be attributed partly to new direct flights from the UK, launched by Jet2. These flights offer straightforward travel options, making initial trips and the moving process much simpler and more direct.

The Canary Islands attract British expats with their sunny and mild weather all year round, relaxed atmosphere, and reasonable cost of living. These features make the islands a top choice for UK residents prioritizing a high quality of life. The improved accessibility provided by new Jet2 flights allows people planning to move to manage their visits better. This means more thorough planning and a smoother move when the time comes.

United International Removals offers a range of services to meet this increasing demand for relocation to the Canary Islands. Their comprehensive solutions cover everything from packing possessions in the UK to safely delivering them to a new home on the islands. The aim is to ensure a smooth and stress-free relocation for clients.

Ross Dunlevy, representing United International Removals, shared, "We've observed a significant rise in the number of individuals who want to call the Canary Islands their home. Our team is committed to providing moving solutions that fit the specific needs of each client."

Jet2's newly introduced direct routes further enhance accessibility, demonstrating the airline's role in streamlining transitions for potential expats. These flights simplify travel logistics, encouraging more people to consider relocating by reducing the barriers to initial visits and full-scale moves.
