MISSISSAUGA, ON - August 11, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Toronto, ON ? In an age where digital advertising often feels impersonal, Pop49 Inc. is leading the charge in bringing brands and their audiences closer together through one-of-a-kind, in-person brand activations. Specialising in creating immersive, hands-on experiences that captivate and engage, Pop49 is redefining experiential marketing by offering solutions that leave lasting impressions and foster genuine connections between brands and consumers.

At Pop49, the belief is simple: to truly connect with an audience, you need more than just a message, you need a moment. By moving away from traditional advertising, the company has focused on designing interactive experiences that actively involve consumers, turning them from passive viewers into engaged participants. Whether it?s a large-scale event, a promotional campaign, or a corporate activation, Pop49 crafts custom-built experiences that speak directly to the heart of the brand?s identity and its target audience.

?Consumers today are constantly bombarded with advertising, much of which feels disconnected,? says a spokesperson for Pop49. "Our goal is to bring brands into the real world in a way that feels personal and memorable. When people are given the opportunity to interact with a brand physically, it creates a deeper emotional bond that digital ads simply can't match."

Pop49's approach is built on creating bespoke brand experiences that go beyond just looking good, they need to feel good, too. From interactive trade show booths and branded games to immersive product demonstrations and experiential sampling stations, Pop49's projects are designed to captivate attention, inspire participation, and drive engagement. Each activation is carefully tailored to reflect the brand's messaging, values, and audience preferences, ensuring a seamless integration into any marketing campaign.

What sets Pop49 apart is its ability to offer a comprehensive, all-in-one service. The company manages every aspect of the activation process, from initial concept development and design to production and implementation. This ensures that every project is executed with precision, offering clients a stress-free experience from start to finish. By handling all the details in-house, such as fabrication, printing, and logistics, Pop49 guarantees that each activation not only meets but exceeds expectations.

"We're not just providing displays or installations, we're creating touchpoints that resonate," says Ricky Pacheco, director at Pop49 Inc. "Every element of what we create is designed to spark curiosity, promote participation, and generate buzz. Our goal is to help brands craft moments that people will want to share, talk about, and remember long after the event is over."

As the demand for experiential marketing continues to grow, Pop49 has positioned itself as an expert in crafting innovative brand activations that drive real-world results. Its reputation for blending creativity with strategic execution has made it a trusted partner for companies across a wide range of industries. From retail to corporate events, Pop49's unique blend of design, engineering, and marketing expertise ensures that every brand activation is a standout success.

"We understand that the competitive landscape for brands is constantly evolving," says another spokesperson from Pop49. "That's why we focus on creating experiences that not only capture attention but create lasting connections with consumers. In the world of experiential marketing, it's all about creating those 'wow' moments, moments that make people stop, engage, and remember."

Pop49's emphasis on engagement-driven experiences ensures that every activation is not just about visibility but about creating meaningful interaction between the brand and its audience. As brands continue to seek new ways to connect with customers in an increasingly noisy marketplace, Pop49 remains at the forefront of delivering creative solutions that combine entertainment, interactivity, and marketing strategy.

Whether for a global trade show, a localised retail activation, or a high-profile event, Pop49's expertise and
