July 10, 2025

DENVER, CO - July 10, 2025 -
With a concerning increase in motorcycle-related deaths in Colorado over the last decade, Colorado Car Accident Lawyers stress the need for strong legal support for motorcyclists and their families. Reports from the Colorado Department of Transportation (CDOT) show a troubling 57% rise in motorcycle fatalities during this time, culminating in 165 motorcyclist deaths in 2024. In response, Colorado Car Accident Lawyers are expanding their services, offering free consultations and being available around the clock to help those affected by these accidents. To learn more about their legal services and explore the comprehensive resources they offer, visit the Colorado Car Accident Lawyers website.

"Our firm is deeply concerned about the rise in fatalities and injuries among motorcyclists," a representative from the firm stated. "This tragic trend highlights the need for awareness and legal support, as motorcyclists are much more vulnerable on the road compared to other drivers."

Adding to the fatalities, a substantial number of these incidents involved riders who were not wearing helmets, with 44% of motorcyclists who died being unhelmeted at the time of their accidents. This has prompted CDOT to advocate for helmet use and other safety measures, especially during May, which is recognized as Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month. Colorado Car Accident Lawyers back these efforts and continue to support raising awareness about safety as they serve as trusted Colorado personal injury attorneys. For advice on how to enforce safety practices and understand the legal consequences of not adhering to safety norms, the firm's blog can be an invaluable resource.

Although motorcyclists make up only 3% of vehicles on Colorado's roads, they accounted for nearly 25% of the state's traffic-related deaths in 2024. With 20% of these fatalities linked to impairment from speed and alcohol, the firm emphasizes the importance of safe driving practices. They provide detailed information on safety guidelines, legal procedures, and how to handle situations after an accident. The firm advises all motorcyclists to wear proper safety gear and seek immediate legal and medical help after an incident.

A positive sign emerged in 2025 when motorcycle fatalities dropped by 20% compared to the previous year. The law firm sees this decline as a hopeful sign of increased safety awareness among motorcyclists and other road users. Nevertheless, they emphasize the need for continued efforts to sustain and further improve these numbers.

"The reduction in fatalities this year might indicate that better safety measures are taking effect, but there's still a long way to go," the firm representative remarked. "Every life lost deeply affects families. We are committed to advocating for our clients' rights and helping them through the complexities of motorcycle crash claims to achieve fair compensation and justice."
