Local Pet Waste Cleanup Expands Service to Additional Eastside Communities

July 11, 2025

CARNATION, WA - July 11, 2025 -
Carnation, WA ? Hairy Houdini LLC, a pet waste removal business based in Carnation, Washington, has announced the expansion of its dog waste cleanup services into several nearby cities, responding to increased demand for affordable and dependable yard sanitation. The locally operated business will now service communities, including Bellevue, Redmond, Kirkland, Sammamish, Issaquah, Duvall, Snoqualmie, Monroe, Fall City, North Bend, and Mercer Island.

Since its founding in 2018, Hairy Houdini LLC has provided scheduled pet waste removal and sanitation for both residential and commercial properties. The service was created to address common issues such as lingering odor, environmental hygiene, and the inconvenience of regular pet waste removal, particularly for busy professionals, families with children, elderly pet owners, and households with multiple dogs. With this service area expansion, the business aims to extend its reputation for consistency and personal care to a broader section of the Eastside.

Hairy Houdini LLC?s owner, Ted Daniels, underscored the broader environmental and public health rationale for expanding the service, explaining that the impact of unmanaged pet waste goes beyond household upkeep. According to Ted Daniels, animal waste contains pathogens that can enter soil and local water systems, posing risks to human and animal health. The goal, he said, is to ensure that outdoor spaces remain clean and safe without placing an additional burden on residents.

The process begins with a request for service submitted through the business?s website. Clients can choose from recurring schedules such as monthly, weekly visits, or one-time cleanups. On-site, field staff remove all visible pet waste and may apply optional treatments to neutralize odors and sanitize high-traffic areas, including patios, decks, and walkways. All tools used are disinfected between service calls, and clients can request off-site haul-away if they prefer not to use their disposal bins.

Hairy Houdini LLC?s continued growth has been shaped by its emphasis on reliable service and personal engagement. As an independently run operation, it does not belong to any national franchise, a detail Ted Daniels considers vital to its approach. He pointed to the value of familiarity with each customer and their pets, stating that staff often remember the dogs by name and occasionally leave behind small treats. In his view, success has come not from scale but from consistently delivering the same high-quality experience.

This model has also allowed the business to respond quickly to client feedback and seasonal conditions. Many pet owners report a noticeable increase in odor or pet waste accumulation during high rainfall or warm weather periods, especially in small yards or shared outdoor areas. By adjusting service intervals and offering customized recommendations, Hairy Houdini LLC has positioned itself as a responsive and adaptable provider in a niche that often lacks reliable options.

Operations are conducted Monday through Friday, from 8 AM to 6 PM, with appointment reminders provided in advance. Service is rescheduled in adverse weather or scheduling issues at no additional cost. Commercial clients, including apartment complexes and homeowner associations, may also arrange to regularly maintain shared spaces where pet relief is common.

Pet owners in the newly added communities have expressed a need for more dependable yard cleanup options, particularly when limited by time, physical ability, or health concerns. Ted Daniels noted that recent inquiries from residents in Issaquah and Kirkland helped prompt the service expansion. While demand has grown steadily, Ted Daniels said the decision to enter new markets was based on clear, repeated interest from surrounding neighborhoods.

Customers have cited the business?s responsiveness and consistency as key reasons for long-term loyalty. One client in Redmond, who has used the service for several years, described the routine visits as transformative. The customer shared that their yard has remained cleaner than ever before and that the service has become an essential part of their weekly routine.

In addition to its regular cleanup offerings, the business has begun exploring environmentally responsible disposal practices. Biodegradable bags have been introduced for some routes, and staff are evaluating partnerships with regional composting programs that meet safety and health regulations. While standard composting systems are inappropriate for dog waste, Hairy Houdini LLC has expressed interest in finding sustainable methods to minimize environmental impact.

The business also maintains a flexible billing system designed to accommodate various needs. Clients are billed monthly, with prorated options available for mid-cycle signups. There are no hidden fees, and all add-on services are itemized in advance. Ted Daniels emphasized that transparency remains a cornerstone of the service structure, noting that many clients have cited clear communication as a major reason for continued engagement.

Pricing remains transparent and straightforward, beginning at $20 per week for routine cleaning services. Additional offerings, including odor control treatments and surface sanitizing sprays, are available for a separate fee. No residential service contracts are required, and customers may suspend or cancel service with brief advance notice.

Its mission remains unchanged as the business grows across King County and the Eastside. Hairy Houdini LLC remains committed to delivering honest, community-oriented service while helping households maintain cleaner, more enjoyable outdoor spaces.
