February 11, 2016 -
Geeks N Gear, a business in Las Vegas, NV, has announced record breaking sales for their newly released BumpIt Bluetooth Speakers. Their recently released sales numbers show that the fourth quarter of 2015 broke previous sales records by 300% on these outdoor Bluetooth speakers. The opening of new sales channels, such as their own online store for these speakers and other products, has been cited as one of the main causes of such a spike in sales.

Stacie Standifer from Geeks N Gear says: "We are very excited about these results and the fact that our speakers are becoming such bestselling items. We look forward to continued growth of our wireless speakers in 2016. Outlook for first quarter of 2016 is positive and the growth trend continues upward."

The wireless speakers have a number of features that made them very popular. Their versatility is often cited by people, as they enable them to listen to various audio files no matter where they go. They are also ultra portable speakers, which are small enough to fit inside a purse or even pocket. Additionally, they work with all Bluetooth devices, including wired devices.

Since the speakers have been released, they have also received hundreds of positive reviews. "This is an awesome little machine, especially for the money," says one customer. "We are dairy farmers and I bought this so we could have tunes at the end of the barn farthest away from the electrical outlets and decent antenna reception ... hence the rechargeable battery power. I didn't want anything expensive because electronics tend to fizzle in the barn's humidity and dirt (read: manure) that gets whipped around in there. It is totally portable. There's more. The customer service is commendable. If you have questions or problems, they're on it in a couple of hours and will see that you are satisfied. I'm not sure what more you could want. If it stands up to the beating it is likely to take in the barn, I will be more than impressed."

The devices come with a hands free speakerphone and are designed to be very easy to pair. The Geeks N Gear Bluetooth Speakers also come with a rechargeable battery to save both money and the environment.
