Rigert Treppenlifte AG, a leader in mobility solutions with over 60 years of experience, is expanding in the German-speaking areas of Switzerland. This expansion is about making sure people who need help moving around have better access to the company's reliable and high-quality services. Rigert Treppenlifte is committed to helping those with limited mobility maintain their independence.

By expanding, the company will improve its ability to deliver services by providing expert knowledge on stair and platform lifts, wheelchair lifts, and stair crawlers. This move allows Rigert Treppenlifte to reach more people, offering a wide range of services that include consultation, project planning, installation, and ongoing customer support. Their dedication to accessibility is clear through tailored services for both private homes and public areas, ensuring smooth integration into existing spaces.

A major focus for Rigert Treppenlifte is providing customer-centered solutions. Their stair lifts are known for being easily installed on both indoor and outdoor stairs without requiring major changes to the building.

These lifts help not only people but also make it easier to move goods, adding convenience for users.

Besides stair lifts, Rigert Treppenlifte offers platform lifts that are designed for wheelchair users. These lifts can be used in numerous places, from homes to public buildings, to help remove accessibility hurdles. By catering to various mobility needs, the company significantly improves the lives of its customers.

The company also offers stair crawlers, which are portable devices providing a short-term solution for people who have difficulty with stairs. This product highlights Rigert Treppenlifte's innovative thinking in adapting to different customer needs and its ongoing effort to offer inclusive mobility solutions.

Rigert Treppenlifte's growth is supported by partnerships with healthcare providers and senior living facilities. These collaborations are essential in creating environments that include everyone and in forming a support network for those with limited mobility. The company's solutions not only improve accessibility but also assist these organizations in taking care of their residents and clients.

Safety is a top priority for Rigert Treppenlifte, especially during changes in seasons that can make mobility more difficult. The company actively advises customers on how to safely use their products all year round.

To connect with the community, Rigert Treppenlifte supports local projects focused on improving mobility and increasing awareness about accessibility. These activities show the company's dedication to doing good in society and stress the need for urban planning that includes everyone.

With this expansion, Rigert Treppenlifte is bolstering its support services as well. It has one of the largest customer service networks in the industry, offering extensive maintenance and repair services to ensure that their installations remain in perfect condition.
