An SEO services provider based in London, United Kingdom, is proud to announce that, while they are a London-based consultancy firm, they are able to rank companies in search engines around the world. Their specialization is on targeting local markets, and they are in fact known as one of the best internet marketing services London has to offer. However, this does not necessarily have to be in London. They are happy to have welcomed a number of international clients to their books.

Alex Grant from SAS Online Marketing Services says: "Because our focus is on local SEO, a lot of companies believe that we only work with businesses in London. They forget that our focus is not on our personal locality, but rather that of our clients. This can be anything from Timbuktu to Michigan. We're happy to have a large number of international clients on our books now as well."

As part of their online marketing services, the company also has a strong focus on social media. They practice what they preach, which is why they have a large and involved following on their own Facebook and Twitter pages. Their services are very extensive and include SEO consulting, link building, local search engine marketing, social media marketing, and reputation management.

Because SAS Online Marketing Services works around the globe, they have a particularly strong understanding of the fact that every business has unique and individual needs. As such, as part of their SEO services, they offer a number of more specific elements, including finding target keywords, fixing on-site issues, building social profiles, and more.

"We encourage everybody to complete our online discovery form," adds Alex. "This will give us an opportunity to see who we are dealing with in terms of their current online standing and will allow us to determine which SEO services are most specifically needed to improve their online standing."

Known as one of the SEO services London has to offer, the company has built a tremendous following of clients who have all been very happy with the work that they have completed over the years.
