Durham, DH - Simply Pets Online has recently launched a product that they claim can assist in the proper nutrition of cats. As the Cornell University College of Veterinary Medicine would highlight, giving cats the right amount of nourishment is important for their overall growth. The product is called slow feed cat bowl and is structured to give cats adequate meals at the right pace.

The Cornell University College of Veterinary Medicine website recently had an article entitled ?How Often Should You Feed Your Cat? which stated what was required in providing cats proper nourishment dependent on the age and health of the cat. According to the website, when pet owners take time to ensure their cat is fed correctly, they help to maintain the cat?s vitality and prevent health problems.

The website further states, ?Feed your cat too little or the wrong kind of food, and he won't maintain good health. Feed him too much, and he'll get fat. But you can help get your cat off on the right paw by establishing regular feeding routines.? They also highlighted the dangers of obesity in cats and recommended keeping the animal lean and healthy. For example overweight cats are ?four and half times more likely to develop diabetes mellitus compared to optimal weight cats.?

On reviewing the article, a spokesperson from Simply Pets Online remarked, ?The Cornell College of Veterinary Medicine hit the nail on the head with this article. They are so accurate to state that you need to establish proper feeding routines for your cats. We?ve found that our slow feed cat bowl does the job with a unique formation that spreads mealtime out in an effective manner.?

Of note, the article recommended that, ?growing kittens up to six months of age may require three meals a day.? Otherwise the cats that are aged six month to maturity can do well with being fed two times a day. The slow feed cat bowl can work to measure out meals appropriately so that no matter the age of the cat, they can acquire optimal nutrition throughout the day.

According to Simply Pets Online, the slow feed cat bowl was designed by professional veterinarians who use the cat bowl daily in their own clinics. This means that the feeding bowl is recommended to be effective at providing cat food at the right amounts to satisfy owner?s pets. The cat bowl does this by its unique design with multiple protrusions that slow down the time for cats to eat their meals and ensure they get the correct quantity of feed.

Simply Pets Online provides the slow feed cat bowl for online shoppers on the large shopping marketplace Amazon. The vendor allows discounts of 20% off the order total if customers purchase five of the product. They can access this discount if they enter the code 43RSJOBG at checkout.
