Affeltrangen, CH - August 08, 2025 -
Storen Gerber AG, located in Affeltrangen, Switzerland, is rolling out an impressive variety of sun and weather protection systems. Their lineup includes top-of-the-line louvered roof pergolas, glass roof systems, and textile awnings. Storen Gerber AG is recognized for their focus on quality and style, providing custom-made outdoor shading solutions that skillfully merge comfort, design, and modern technology, such as LED lighting and sensor automation.

With years of experience and a dedication to using top-tier materials, Storen Gerber AG caters to the unique needs of each customer. Their skilled team assists with planning and ensures thorough installation across Eastern Switzerland. Customers can visit their extensive showroom to get a feel for the different options and see how they can enhance their outdoor spaces.

In recent years, there has been a surge in demand in Switzerland for stylish outdoor living spaces. Homeowners are looking for solutions that not only protect them from the elements but also elevate the look of their gardens and terraces into practical extensions of their homes. Storen Gerber AG meets this trend with innovative designs aimed at providing durability and year-round comfort. Additional details and resources are available on their platform at https://storen-gerber-ag.localo.site.

Among their standout products are the louvered roof pergolas, a perfect blend of style and functionality. These pergolas have adjustable slats, allowing users to control sunlight and airflow, tailoring their outdoor environment no matter the season. With optional LED lighting and automated sensors, these pergolas give users a personalized outdoor experience suited to various living preferences.

The company also offers glass roof systems that shield against the weather while letting in plenty of natural light. These are ideal for those who want to enjoy garden views throughout the year, no matter what the weather is like, adding a touch of elegance and practicality to any outdoor setting. Textile awnings are another flexible choice, perfect for adding color or complementing current garden designs.

By integrating smart technology into their products, Storen Gerber AG highlights their commitment to convenience and innovation. Their smart control systems make it easy for homeowners to manage their shading solutions with little fuss.
