SKIN Clinics Expands Access to Laser Hair Removal Services

SKIN Clinics, a dermatologist-owned provider of medical and cosmetic dermatology services, has announced the expansion of its laser hair removal services to additional communities. This move reflects the clinic?s goal of increasing access to medically supervised aesthetic treatments for a wider range of residents.

Previously offered only at SKIN Clinics? central location, the service is now being made available to clients in surrounding areas, giving more people the opportunity to consult with trained professionals, explore treatment options, and access personalized care.

Laser hair removal is a light-based procedure that targets the pigment in hair follicles to reduce hair growth over time. The treatment is widely chosen as an alternative to frequent shaving or waxing, with results maintained through fewer repeat sessions.

At SKIN Clinics, the service is performed with medical-grade laser systems calibrated to individual skin and hair types. Each session is administered by certified technicians following clinical protocols, with features designed to prioritize comfort, safety, and consistent outcomes.

Dr. Jason Sneath, a board-certified dermatologist and medical director at SKIN Clinics, emphasized the importance of accessibility in cosmetic medicine. ?We believe access to dermatologist-led treatments should be available across more communities,? said Chelsea Webster, RN. ?Expanding our laser hair removal services is part of our commitment to evidence-based care and to ensuring clients receive the same trusted standards wherever they are.?

Appointments are available for consultation and treatment at SKIN Clinics? main facility. Sessions are offered on weekdays and select Saturdays, with bookings available online or by phone. Each new client undergoes a consultation that includes skin analysis, medical history review, and treatment planning tailored to their goals.

Laser hair removal can be performed on multiple areas of the body, such as the legs, face, underarms, bikini line, and torso. Demand for this service has grown steadily among both men and women who seek longer-term solutions to traditional hair removal methods.

SKIN Clinics operates across Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, with each location led by dermatologists. This model ensures consistency, clinical integrity, and medically guided aesthetic care. The Calgary facility features private consultation rooms and a discreet setting designed to support client privacy and comfort.

The expansion of laser hair removal is part of SKIN Clinics? broader strategy to make a full menu of treatments accessible to more people. These services include procedures focused on skin tone, texture, volume, and overall appearance, all delivered through a medically supervised approach.

Residents seeking more information or wishing to schedule an initial consultation can visit the SKIN Clinics website or contact the Calgary office directly.

SKIN Clinics continues to advance its mission of offering professional, safe, and respectful care to every client, reinforcing its role as a trusted leader in skin health and cosmetic medicine.
