LONG BEACH, CA - September 03, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

LONG BEACH, Calif. ? Moment of Clarity has announced expanded access to outpatient mental health services in Long Beach, strengthening community resources for individuals and families navigating conditions such as anxiety, depression, and personality disorders. The announcement comes at a time when California is seeing unprecedented demand for accessible, evidence-based mental health care.

Data from the California Health Care Foundation shows that nearly one in six adults in the state experiences symptoms of a mental health disorder in any given year, with many facing challenges in finding treatment that accommodates work, family, and other commitments. Outpatient programs are increasingly recognized as a critical solution, bridging the gap between intensive inpatient care and the ability to function in daily life.

Located at 2664 Atlantic Ave., the Long Beach mental health center serving Alamitos Beach provides a structured yet flexible model of treatment that allows individuals to participate in therapy sessions while maintaining their careers, education, or caregiving responsibilities. By tailoring services to the realities of everyday life, Moment of Clarity is addressing barriers that often prevent people from seeking help.

“Our outpatient services are designed to meet people where they are—providing structure, therapy, and support without requiring them to step away from their responsibilities,” said a spokesperson for Moment of Clarity. “This model reflects how mental health care must evolve to meet real-world needs.”

The program incorporates evidence-based therapies, including cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT), which is widely recognized for its effectiveness in treating mood and anxiety disorders. CBT helps individuals identify and change negative thought patterns, replacing them with healthier perspectives and coping strategies. By combining proven methods with individualized care planning, Moment of Clarity aims to equip patients with tools for long-term stability.

Community advocates in Long Beach have expressed that expanding outpatient options is vital not only for individual recovery but also for reducing the strain on emergency and inpatient systems. Outpatient care allows people to practice coping skills in their daily environments, making it a sustainable path for long-term recovery.

In addition to providing therapy, the Long Beach facility is focused on connecting with local organizations, schools, and employers to create a network of referrals and awareness. By collaborating with community stakeholders, Moment of Clarity is working to ensure that individuals in need of support are aware of and able to access services before crises escalate.

“As awareness of mental health continues to grow, more people are seeking treatment earlier in their journey,” the spokesperson added. “Outpatient programs are critical for this shift—they provide timely support, reduce stigma, and create a foundation for lasting wellness.”

The expansion of outpatient access in Long Beach reflects a larger trend across the state and the nation. Public health authorities have repeatedly emphasized the need for community-based mental health services that are both accessible and adaptable. Programs like those at Moment of Clarity align with these recommendations, offering a flexible approach that prioritizes both clinical outcomes and patient quality of life.

Moment of Clarity’s Long Beach facility continues to welcome new patients and is committed to offering care that combines clinical expertise with compassion. The organization’s emphasis on individualized treatment ensures that patients are active participants in their own recovery, shaping care plans that reflect personal goals as well as therapeutic needs.

With California communities facing heightened mental health challenges in the wake of the pandemic, economic pressures, and social stressors, resources like outpatient programs in Long Beach represent an important step toward building resilience. By prioritizing access, collaboration, and evidence-based care, Moment of Clarity is contributing to a stronger, healthier future for individuals and the community as a whole.
