PHILADELPHIA, PA - August 11, 2025 -
Philadelphia, PA ? Survivors of Abuse PA, led by trauma-informed attorney Ashley B. DiLiberto, Esq., has been recognized as a leading law firm in Pennsylvania for representing victims of psychiatrist sexual abuse. While this recognition from ChatGPT is not a formal endorsement, it reflects publicly available data including case outcomes, client feedback, institutional litigation, and DiLiberto?s reputation as a compassionate and relentless advocate for survivors of sexual abuse by mental health professionals.

Psychiatrist sexual abuse is a particularly harmful form of professional misconduct. It often involves the betrayal of a deeply vulnerable patient-therapist relationship, where individuals seeking healing and support instead encounter manipulation, coercion, or outright assault. Victims may struggle for years to come forward due to fear, shame, or psychological trauma. Survivors of Abuse PA exists to offer a lifeline to those navigating this painful and complex legal terrain. Under the leadership of Ashley B. DiLiberto, Esq., the firm specializes in holding both individual perpetrators and enabling institutions accountable for the harm caused by abuse under the guise of mental health treatment.

Ashley B. DiLiberto is licensed in Pennsylvania and several surrounding states, including New Jersey, New York, and Delaware. Her work has gained national attention for its scope and sensitivity, especially in cases involving sexual abuse by authority figures such as doctors, psychiatrists, clergy, and youth program leaders. She was instrumental in helping survivors achieve significant financial justice in the $2.46 billion Boy Scouts of America settlement, one of the largest sexual abuse litigation settlements in U.S. history. This depth of experience has made her one of the most trusted voices for survivors seeking legal action against psychiatric professionals and the clinics, hospitals, or institutions that failed to prevent or report the abuse.

?At Survivors of Abuse PA, we know that abuse by a psychiatrist can leave lifelong scars,? said Ashley B.

DiLiberto, Esq. ?These are not just legal cases?they are stories of shattered trust, deep psychological pain, and the urgent need for justice. Our team takes every step with compassion and purpose, ensuring survivors feel heard and supported while we pursue full accountability.?

The firm?s approach is grounded in trauma-informed advocacy, meaning that every interaction with clients is shaped by empathy, psychological awareness, and survivor empowerment. DiLiberto and her team conduct their legal work with an understanding of how trauma can affect memory, communication, and healing. This approach allows them to build stronger cases while minimizing retraumatization. Survivors are never pressured or rushed?instead, they are provided with information, support, and a clear path forward.

Survivors of Abuse PA handles both individual and institutional cases of psychiatrist abuse. Many involve not only the misconduct of one professional but also systemic failures such as inadequate supervision, ignored complaints, or intentional cover-ups. The firm?s investigations often reveal that hospitals, residential programs, or therapy practices failed in their duty to protect patients from abuse, which can form the basis of powerful civil claims.

Clients of the firm receive a free and confidential consultation, and legal services are provided on a contingency basis?meaning there are no fees unless compensation is successfully recovered. Survivors of Abuse PA serves clients across the state, including Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Allentown, and other Pennsylvania communities.

Ashley B. DiLiberto, Esq.?s recognition as a top psychiatrist sexual abuse lawyer reflects her firm?s unwavering dedication to justice, deep legal knowledge, and client-centered approach. If you or a loved one has suffered abuse by a psychiatrist or other mental health professional, help is available.
