

Happy Cook Silicone Spatula Set Gets 5 Star Reviews

March 14, 2016

March 14, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

DSB Products, a business in Keller, TX, is proud to announce that their silicone spatula set has received consistent 5 star reviews from their many clients. This has made it a bestselling item and an increasing number of people are turning to purchase it. For those who want to take a look at a 5 star customer review, the company is encouraging them to visit the Amazon page for this particular product. The spatula set is one item in the Happy Cook brand kitchen essentials product line launched by DSB Products in early 2015.

D.S. Barnett from DSB Products says: "We're so happy to see that our Happy Cook brand spatula set is so well received. We stand by the quality of all of our products, but it is always good to hear when people tell you they love it too."

To date, 84% of the reviews received on the spatula set have been five star. The further 16% are four star reviews. Not a single complaint has been received by the company. Nevertheless, they continue to be committed to excellent customer service, so if someone does have an issue they are encouraged to contact them as soon as possible to have it resolved. The offering includes two spatulas of different sizes, a spoonula, and a silicone basting brush. All pieces are solid cast premium silicone with a metal stiffening rod inside, so that each spatula is a single piece instead of two pieces like many spatulas. The utensils are all the trademark purple color that the Happy Cook brand has become known for.

Spatulas are highly popular items on the Amazon marketplace. This means that businesses have to compete quite fiercely with each other to get noticed. The fact that the DSB Products spatula has garnered so much positive feedback and become so popular, so quickly, is a true testament to its quality. The company believes this is mainly due to the product's amazing features. The one piece construction, vibrant color, stylish design, heavy feel, and the utility of including spatulas, a spoonula and a silicone basting brush, all contribute value to the utensil set.

The reviews for the silicone spatula set do speak for themselves. "Silicone is quickly becoming my favorite thing ... in the kitchen," says one reviewer. "It can handle high temperatures without becoming damaged like plastic or rubber. These tools don't absorb the grease or coloring from foods like wooden utensils. They also won't scratch metal, non-stick or ceramic pans. The basting brush is probably my favorite. I used to have to replace those frequently. No matter how much I washed my old brushes there was inevitably some remaining BBQ sauce or something that would get stuck where the bristles attach to the handle. Likewise, the spatulas have a one piece design that ensures they won't come apart during use. This set has a very nice combination of basic tools and a fun color. I had originally purchased these as a gift for my daughter when she moves out, but there is no way I am letting it go now. I will be buying another set for her."

People are encouraged to visit the DSB Products Amazon store for details about the spatula and other items.
