DETROIT, MI - February 02, 2026 -

Fleet Cost & Care has announced it has successfully integrated its advanced solutions into the operations of major crane rental and construction companies. The company, known for its forward-thinking approach to fleet management, plays a vital role in boosting operational efficiency for clients worldwide. Part of this integration is their cloud based crane management software, which is crafted to streamline operations, cut down on overhead costs, and boost productivity for businesses in the construction industry.

Fleet Cost & Care's software addresses the growing needs of crane rental companies by offering tools that help with inventory control, job scheduling, and fleet maintenance. This means companies can respond faster and improve customer satisfaction. The cloud-based crane management software allows users to access fleet data in real-time from anywhere, which helps maximize efficiency and improve decision-making in operations. Their fleet management software provides an easy-to-follow, step-driven process that captures real-time information, eliminating the need for paper and reducing waiting times.

"We are proud to enhance our clients' operational capabilities by providing them with solutions that simplify complex processes," said Jeff Curran of Fleet Cost & Care. "Our software not only offers enhanced fleet visibility but also simplifies logistics, which allows our clients to focus more on their core business activities."

Recently, the company teamed up with several commercial fleet consultants to expand the reach of its software in the crane rental and construction sectors. These partnerships aim to show more companies the benefits of efficient fleet management and guide them on using technology to improve their operations. The company's NexGen software solution helps businesses eliminate standalone systems, standardize processes, and generate greater profits. By working with industry experts, Fleet Cost & Care ensures that its products stay modern and continue to meet the evolving needs of customers.

Fleet management involves careful planning and execution, and companies are always on the lookout for tools that can streamline these tasks. Fleet Cost & Care is focusing on cloud-based technologies that make managing fleets more efficient and easy to access. This capability is essential for dealing with the unique challenges of the construction industry, where managing multiple projects at different locations can make logistics complicated. The Atom mobile fleet management application allows employees in the field to complete safety inspection checklists, take pictures, and collect signatures on a job site.

The software provides more than just data collection and analysis. It helps companies significantly cut down on costs. Fleet Cost & Care offers a comprehensive set of tools that boost operational efficiency without disrupting current operations. With automated alerts and reporting features, managers receive timely updates about fleet performance, maintenance needs, and job schedules. This allows them to make informed decisions that are in line with their business objectives.

Jeff Curran stated, "Our continuing commitment to improving fleet management processes stems from listening to the specific needs of our customers. By working closely with commercial fleet consultants, we ensure that our software evolves alongside our clients' businesses and industry landscapes."

Fleet Cost & Care has positioned itself as a leader in creating advanced fleet management solutions that drive efficiency in the crane rental industry. This progress is backed by their dedication to ongoing improvement and strategic partnerships, which widen the impact and effectiveness of their software services.
