August 22, 2025

AVENTURA, FL - August 22, 2025 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

IMHO Reviews released an article discussing a free Mindvalley live seminar led by Paul McKenna and a limited two-week free window to McKenna?s acclaimed audio ?Hypnotic Trance Bliss.? The release follows a surge of listener feedback and fresh testing by IMHO Reviews, which examines programs and distills them into simple, repeatable routines for the public. Vitaliy Lano, founder of IMHO Reviews, stated that the aim is clarity and measurable benefits, ?tools that lower stress, build confidence, and help people move forward without fluff.?

The Paul McKenna Seminar for Mindvalley Members is set for Sunday, August 31, from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. in Los Angeles and 4:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. in London. Access is free for Mindvalley members, with a path for non-members to register and unlock entry through a monthly membership. The live session targets three areas that Lano has seen drive the most change with consistent practice: self-confidence, money and abundance habits, and optimal weight and health. ?This is a real-time reset with a practitioner many regard as best in class,? Lano commented, noting McKenna?s global readership and recognition in mainstream

IMHO Reviews article highlighted the current, time-bound access to ?Hypnotic Trance Bliss,? which the Mindvalley community voted Audio of the Year in 2024. Lano's own field notes are positive and plain. As a certified hypnotist, he stated, ?Hypnosis is a way to move an intention from the conscious mind into the subconscious - shifting from just wanting to having it inside. It briefly bypasses critical chatter and clears mental noise. It isn?t a miracle; it?s a practical channel to communicate with the brain.? He added, ?Many still think of stage shows. In daily life, brief hypnotic states appear often - during a familiar commute, while absorbed in a task, or while scrolling. Most people don?t label those states, yet they?re common.? Lano suggested that public understanding improves when hypnosis is framed as learnable skills that support calm and clear decision-making.

The IMHO Reviews article discussed a protocol for beginners: headphone listening for five consecutive days, then a simple check of real-life markers - sleep quality, response to tense messages, steadiness in meetings, and recovery after setbacks. ?The benchmark isn?t the mood during the track; it?s the next morning under pressure,? Lano explained. The method uses split-ear suggestions and story elements to occupy surface thinking while new patterns settle. ?It can feel unusual at first,? he added, ?and that?s part of how the guard drops.?

Lano?s earlier tests with McKenna?s confidence trance produced clear behavioral changes. He pitched larger stages and accepted bolder collaborations. ?Confidence is a behavior loop,? he expressed. ?Install the loop and outcomes shift.?

The broader claim presented by IMHO Reviews is measured: high ambient anxiety wastes attention. McKenna distinguishes between situational stress and the constant background hum that drains energy. ?People over-practice tension,? Lano stated. ?News, rapid changes, too many tabs. Lower the baseline, and decisions get cleaner.? Member reports collected by the IMHO team describe reduced overreactions, steadier communication, and practical carryover to work and relationships. The working model is simple: a calmer system has more bandwidth.

The upcoming live seminar focuses on three areas. For confidence, the program uses cue-based anchors and precise self-talk. For money and abundance, the focus is on belief updates and habit swaps that reduce scarcity patterns. For optimal weight and health, the session targets emotional eating and day-to-day consistency. People don?t need drama; they need doable,? Lano commented.

IMHO Reviews recommended their readers a timely sign-up through Mindvalley?s app or website. Lano stated that those attending live will benefit from a quiet space, comfortable seating, headphones, and a few minutes after each segment to integrate.
