September 02, 2025

DULUTH, GA - September 02, 2025 -
Arrowhead Clinic in Duluth, Georgia, has launched a new healthcare program aimed at helping car accident victims right after they get hurt. The focus is on giving them the care they need within the first 24 hours after an accident. This time frame is important because it can prevent injuries from getting worse. The updated services are now designed to make post-accident care faster and easier, and the clinic is ready to welcome walk-in patients who need urgent help.

The clinic offers quick medical check-ups, detailed injury reports, diagnostics using advanced testing methods, and same-day chiropractic appointments for those feeling pain after an accident. They have also prepared a guide to help accident victims through what needs to be done in those first 24 hours. The guide covers keeping safe, contacting emergency services, and setting up needed same day evaluations.

Dr. Darris Gentry, DC, from Arrowhead Clinic shared why this is so important. "Our goal is to give quick and effective care to our patients who have been in an auto accident," he said. "It's not just about treatment; it's also about education and support during those important first 24 hours." Through this effort, Arrowhead Clinic aims to help patients manage their health needs and navigate any legal issues following an accident.

Not only do they provide urgent medical assessments, but they also offer a complete recovery plan. This includes careful tracking of symptoms, coordination with other healthcare providers and legal consultants, and the use of advanced tools to find the exact cause of pain or injury. Their all-around approach makes sure that patients receive comprehensive care.
