Immortalitea Announces The Addition of Organic Whole Flower Hibiscus Tea to Their Wellness Collection

February 19, 2016

February 19, 2016 -
Leading North American tea and herbs retailer, Immortalitea, announced today the addition of Organic Whole Flower Hibiscus Tea to their Wellness Collection of loose leaf herbal teas.

Hibiscus Flower teas have received great attention in recent months due to a new meta-study published in June in the Journal of Hypertension. The study analyzed over ten years of prior studies on the efficacy of Hibiscus Flower Tea and found that when the separate studies are combined using statistical techniques there is ample evidence to support the traditional use of hibiscus tea to support healthy blood flow and circulation.

Immortalitea has sourced their new organic hibiscus flower tea from a community farming cooperative in Sichuan province China located in the environmentally pristine slopes of Mt. Emei.

Company founder, Ralph Kenney commented, ?We?re proud to add this world-class hibiscus tea to our product line up. We spent over 6 months searching for the right grower. There are so many cheap cut and sifted hibiscus teas on the market. These inferior hibiscus teas are a real disservice to tea lovers. Our new Organic Whole Flower Hibiscus Tea elevates the product to a whole new level.?

Immortalitea was founded over 12 years ago focused on brining new healing herbal teas to North America. More information about the company and their products can be found at http://www.immortalitea.com
