Fort Lauderdale, FL based company, Alpsy Group, has announced the launch of their latest product, a unique pet grooming deshedder tool. The company states that three different blade sizes give the tool its uniqueness.

The tool is specifically designed to provide ergonomic grooming, which makes it easier for pet owners to use. It is also designed to remove hair and buildup on the skin of pets, things that can often cause itching and other serious health issues.

A spokesperson for Alpsy Group, Mark Kazmierczak, commented on the product release saying, "Our deshedder is designed for all pet owners and will work on small, medium, and large dogs equally."

The dog deshedding brush is a grooming tool that has detachable and interchangeable blades in three sizes, which are four inches, three inches, and two inches, suiting the needs of dogs of all coat lengths. The stainless steel blades feature rounded edges, designed to be safer for dogs and owners, and to help reduce pet shedding by as much as 90 percent.

Alpsy Group is offering the pet grooming tool on the Amazon marketplace exclusively. Those who are interested can check out the said marketplace to get a better idea of how the deshedding brush works and read reviews from other consumers who have tried it. The brush currently has a nearly 100 percent positive rating on the marketplace from consumers, which is a feat the company declares is rare given that it has been released for only a short time.

"We aim to provide consumer products that make life easier," states Kazmierczak. "This is just one in a long list of products that we offer, and more are sure to come out soon." Several Alpsy products have already been featured on major television networks such as NBC, ABC, and Fox.

Mark Kazmierczak states that the tool can also be used for cat deshedding, and works perfectly on cats with long coats to help prevent matting which can be harmful to pets. The company states that anyone who would like to try the new deshedding tool can do so safely with their 100 percent money back guarantee or free replacement promise.
