Residential Plumbing Company In Ventura County Debunks Common Plumbing Myths

February 29, 2016

February 29, 2016 -
(Moorpark, CA) - Rooter Hero Plumbing of Ventura County is debunking certain plumbing myths and wants to set the record straight. The spokesperson for the company, Jessica Perrault, states that these are misunderstandings that they address with customers on a regular basis. She says, "You just wouldn't believe some of the things that people will use to clean their drains and disposals; things that, in many cases, can really cause some damage."

One of the most troubling beliefs that can lead to small problems going unnoticed is when people believe that just because water is running through the drains, they don't have a clog. However, Rooter Hero Plumbing says that the opposite could actually be true. The company says that when stubborn clogs are present, it is imperative to address the actual clog and not simply the symptoms of the clog, like water running down the drain. ?Often,? Perrault says, ?blockages remain, and when they are not treated properly, they could cause damage to lines, pipes, and even the interior of a home if the pipes burst.

Rooter Hero Plumbing provides business and residential plumbing in Ventura County helping home and business owners eliminate worries associated with clogged drains and other issues that some homeowners often feel are not that serious. In debunking these most common myths, the company hopes that customers will realize that often plumbing maintenance is the best way to go.

Perrault says that there are a number of other myths that the company addresses on their site, some of which involve using lemons to clean and disinfect disposals, sanitizing toilets, and general plumbing maintenance. She says that most homeowners are unaware that plumbing maintenance is a needed step toward ensuring that pipes remain unclogged and functioning properly. The company addresses the five most commonly believed plumbing mishaps on their website and offers solutions that are designed to help homeowners to enjoy healthier pipes, and avoid the often costly repairs that can come along with some plumbing issues.
